JOFFRE, HERO OF MARNE, DIES

Today

Get Your New Model.
Cheerful Chicago.
Too Many Marines Shot.
Beer, Perhaps.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

NEW YORK starts its annual automobile show, and other great cities will soon do so. See the new cars, select your model. Don't be easily persuaded that you can't afford a car.

An automobile is an investment in pleasure for all the family, in power to see and know your own country, and an investment that adds to life by making time more valuable.

IT ISN'T how many hours you have but how much you can do in one hour that decides life's value.

A Galapagos turtle lives 900 years. But he couldn't see in 9,000,000 years as much as a man with a car can see in a week.

CHICAGO WOULD like the rest of the world to know that it starts 1931 cheerfully. That spot, one hundred years ago an Indian trading post, now includes real estate that, according to the Chicago Herald Examiner, "exceeds the entire wealth of Switzerland, Chile and New Zealand, and is greater than the wealth of all the Netherlands, by one billion dollars."

IN 1931, Illinois will pay $800,000,000 wages to 500,000 factory workers, and sell to the world $3,000,000,000 worth of manufactured goods. It will spend $400,000,000 on new buildings.

REVOLUTION in Panama drives out the president, and kills 11, including one American. Revolutions seem to be fashionable with our friends farther south. But that is their business, not ours. As long as they do not interfere with us, we should not interfere with them.

NEWS FROM Nicaragua is our business. Rebels there killed eight American Marines, making 27 marines killed by Nicaraguans in the past four years.

Just why our Marines were there, our government knows. The original proposition was that they would stay and help police the country until the new Nicaraguan government became established. It seems to have taken a long time to become established.

SENATOR KING, of Utah, wants our Marines brought out immediately and says we are "using bayonets to hold up the investments of our capitalists."

No matter what we have been doing, something should be done now to persuade Nicaraguans responsible that it is a mistake to ambush and shoot American Marines, that were not shooting anybody.

NEXT TUESDAY you may hear from the Wickersham Commission that has been discussing beer and such things.

The President will be told, according to prediction, that the commission would not repeal prohibition, but would get around it. They would advise modifying the Volstead Act by opening the way for "beer, non-intoxicating in fact."

PERHAPS THE state will decide what kind of beer is "non-intoxicating in fact," in which case some states will have excellent beer.

MUSSOLINI'S talk on the radio, for which he learned how to make a speech in English, produces an excellent effect. Even the French believe in the sincerity of his statement:

"I fought in the war as a common soldier in the ranks, and would never let Italy initiate a war that would imperil whole populations, without the possibility of defense."

Whatever future history may say of Mussolini it must admit that his country was fortunate in getting him for a ruler, at a time when the choice was dictatorship or chaos.

Imagine Italy or Russia, without a powerful central government.

If you judged man by his past, full of murder, cheating, cannibalism, brutality, selfishness, you wouldn't hope much for his future. He must be judged by his progress.

William F. Ogburn, University of Chicago, says that man of the future may remain a child until forty years old. Many do that now, and long after forty.

Dr. Ogburn thinks morality, as we understand it, will disappear, and law will become less and less important. He is mistaken about morality. Respect for law will be inborn, so that men will do what they ought to do, as ants and bees do now, being millions of years older than we are.

IN THE YEAR 2500, according to Dr. East, of Harvard, the earth will be inhabited by one hybrid race, a mixture of all races, stabilized and permanent. That, however, will not happen by the year 2,500 or by the year 5,000.

Men have been on the earth already for 40 million years, according to Professor Osborn, of the Museum of Natural History.

To change a bushman to a standardized human would take many times 2,500 years.

WIDOW, NAVY MAN FLYING TO PARIS

Red-Haired Woman, Sailor Will Refuel at Bermuda; Storms Due Farther On

By DAVID P. SENTNER,
International News Service.

NORTH BEACH, N. Y., Jan. 3.—A pony express plane shot away for Paris at 5:55 a. m. today.

It was ridden by a daredevil ex-Navy officer and a flying widow with red hair—Bill MacLaren, and Beryl Hart. He taught her to fly.

They plan to stop for refueling their monoplane at Bermuda and the Azores. Their aim is to show the feasibility of a regular trans-Atlantic mail and express airplane service over the southern route.

DEFY WEATHER

Although weather conditions along the 4,345-mile air route from New York to Paris were dead against them, the co-ed flying team insisted on taking off. They had been waiting since September.

MacLaren and Mrs. Hart have branded their plane Trade Wind.

If they make their goal these aerial partners plan to fly back here from Paris.

The white plane rose from the waters of Bowery Bay, an indentation of the East River, and streaked away into the darkness toward Bermuda. Capt. MacLaren said they expected to make the tropical island in eight hours. The distance is about 775 miles.

CAPTAIN AT CONTROLS

MacLaren was at the controls of the cabin plane as it lifted toward the horizon over which the moon hung.

As "Madame Redhead"—They call her that at the airport—climbed into the cockpit of the plane she threw a kiss to her mother and shouted:

"Goodbye, mother. I never telephoned anyone from Paris but I am going to give you a call."

G. O. P. Caucus Upset by Commissioner's Challenge On Mansfield Indorsement

Did Mayor Charles H. Kline "put one over" on County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, or was it Gov.-elect Gifford Pinchot's telegram to Armstrong that blew the roof off the caucus of the Allegheny County legislative delegation?

This is the question politicians are asking each other today as a result of the caucus last night at which State Senator Morris Einstein was elected chairman of the delegation; Edward Goehring, vice-chairman, and James Wettach secretary and treasurer.

The first act of the newly-installed officers was to call for the indorsement of C. Jay Goodnough for speaker of the House. This was given without a dissenting vote. Then came the matter of indorsing W. D. Mansfield for president pro-tempore of the Senate and "fireworks."

HARMONY PRAISED

Prior to the naming of Einstein harmony was the keynote of the caucus. Speakers included Mayor Kline, County Commissioner E. V. Babcock, Councilman John S. Herron, Miles Bryan and Representative Samuel J. Grenet. Kline said:

"We are one big happy homogeneous family. Never in Allegheny County has there been such a coalition of forces as there is today."

Herron said:

"Real harmony and the real spirit of co-operation prevailing, makes for wonderful progress. This organization is built on friendship. This was wonderfully demonstrated in the last election."

Babcock said:

"The more we stick together in politics or business the more progress we make and the more

MARSHAL JOSEPH JOFFRE HE STOPPED THE GERMANS

OLD WARRIOR EXPIRES IN COMA

Death Comes Peacefully as Family, Staff Surround Bedside of Great Soldier

By FREDERICK K. ABBOTT,
International News Service.

PARIS, Jan. 3. — Marshal Joseph Jacques Cesaire Joffre, hero of the Marne and commander-in-chief of the French army during the first two years of the war, died at the clinic of St. Jean De Dieu today at 8:23 a. m. (3:23 a. m. Eastern standard time).

Capt. Saint Sernin of the marshal's headquarters' staff made the announcement to the assembled journalists in the vestibule of the clinic.

WIFE AT BEDSIDE

At the warrior's bedside in his final moments were Mme Joffre and the immediate family, as well as the officers of the marshal's staff and four doctors, in addition to Holy Brother Ferdinand. The last absolution was administered at 8 a. m., by Pere Bellesoeur, the army chaplain.

In leaving the death chamber shortly after, Dr. Leriche, Joffre's chief physician, declared the marshal passed away without regaining consciousness. Dr. Leriche said:

"When the amputation was performed on December 19, the marshal was completely lucid, although in great agony. He fell into a coma on the 26th of December at 8 p. m.

"He regained consciousness for five and ten minute periods subsequently. He died painlessly, slowly, completely unconscious. There was no physical reaction, no movement."

WILL LIE IN STATE

The body was taken to the chapel of the Ecole Militaire, where it will lie in state.

Two weeks ago Marshal Joffre was taken from his home at Louveciennes suffering from inflammation of the arteries in his legs. Gangrene developed, and the five attending physicians decided the only hope lay in amputation

ECKENER PLANS VISIT TO U. S.

BERLIN, Jan. 3.—(Universal.)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, will sail for New York within the next few days to make definite arrangements for getting helium gas for trans-Atlantic Zeppelin traffic.

While Dr. Eckener is in New York, the question of a trans-Atlantic Zeppelin service and the plans for building of the Zeppelins necessary for such a venture will be definitely decided.

'NUMBERS' FATE IN BALANCE

What—oh, what—is going to happen to the "numbers" in Pittsburgh?

The gentlemen at the helm of the local gambling ship are asking themselves that question today. They must act, and act quickly.

Not so John Public. His it is to wait, to mark time, while the decision is made for him. And then—his to play, or not to play. His decision it is that will tell the pool operators whether they have acted wisely, have guided their ship across the shoals.

Faced with discontinuance of the New York Stock Exchange total daily sales figure, or its release in round very round figures, the numbers gentry are concerned.

Some say it will be best to throw dice for the winning number. But certain unscrupulous operators may load them, the more reliable ones fear.

Waiting for the decision are some tens or hundreds of thousands of Pittsburgh 1000-1 shot gamblers and thousands of storekeepers, professional bookies, pool operators, pick-up men, pay-off men, clerical help, body-guards, blackmailers, dopesters, men, women and children, who live wholly or partly by the "numbers" racket or lose part or all of their money on it in Pittsburgh.

Just Another Peace Treaty To Fight About

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

We signed that naval pledge. And that's another peace treaty to fight about.

And down in Panama the Panamanians have started pandemonium.

The rebels have grabbed the isthmus by the neck.

We will have to handle this trouble ourselves. Not being in the Leak of Nations we cannot call the plumber.

Then there's a war in Nicaragua that will be worse when Borah gets into it. So you can see that peace on earth and good will to men is all right when they get the labels on the right bottles.

Well, you can never tell what will happen. A little silk worm

HOLD UP STORE, FIRE AT CLERK

Two young robbers held up Harry Gorman's grocery store, 916 Highview street, this morning and fled with cash and jewelry totaling $1,200 after firing a shot which narrowly missed an intrepid clerk.

The two bandits, one described as wearing a black camel's hair coat, entered the store with guns drawn. They compelled Sam Barbarine and Dominic Vizzini, clerks, to hold up their hands.

One of the robbers emptied the safe containing a diamond ring valued at $1,000 and a lavaliere valued at $125, belonging to Mrs. Gorman, and two Russian gold pieces and 25 two-and-a-half dollar gold pices which Gorman kept as mementoes.

PEACE BID MADE IN POWER FEUD

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—President Hoover's new federal power commission made an open bid for peace with the Senate today by inviting Solicitor Charles A. Russell and Chief Accountant William V. King, removed from office, to apply for reappointment.

Its action was limited, however, to an assurance that their applications would be "considered in due course along with all other applications for appointment."

Plane Official Hurt In Fatal Auto Crash

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—(INS.)—William Laird, operating director of the E. M. Laird Airplane Company and a widely-known figure in aviation, was suffering from serious injuries today as the result of an automobile smashup last night which brought death to Harry Hamann, 29.

Hamann's motor truck was hit by a sedan driven by Laird. Both vehicles were nearly demolished. Laird suffered fractures of both legs and lapsed into unconsciousness. His condition is critical.

J. V. Thompson to Undergo Eye Operation Here

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 3.—Troubles never come singly. Having paid his debt to the law by serving a week's sentence in the residence of Warden William Wilson in the Fayette County jail, J. V. Thompson is facing another crisis—an operation.

Mr. Thompson plans to enter the Eye and Ear Hospital, in Pittsburgh, next Thursday and undergo an operation the following day for the removal of a cataract of one eye on the following day. He probably will be confined in the hospital for two weeks or more.

Mr. Thompson's sight has been failing rapidly. A few months ago he had a complete examination made in the Pittsburgh hospital and was informed that an operation was imperative. The operation on one eye may help the other. If not then he will have to have a second operation.

The negotiations for the sale of many thousands of acres of coal in Greene County are not expected to be much affected by the absence of Mr. Thompson. His business associates will continue the negotiations with the hope of something definite within the next two or three months.

The aged financier has been resting quietly at his palatial home, at Oak Hill, for the last two weeks in preparation for the delicate operation. Mr. Thompson will be 77 years old February 15.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 3.—(AP.)—The State Banking Department today issued a call for a report of the condition of all state banks at the close of business, December 31.

Queen Helen in Hasty Visit To Sick Ex-Boy King

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Jan. 3.—(AP.)—Queen Helen, estranged wife of King Carol, returned to the palace at Bucharest today after a hurried mission of maternal love at the bedside of Michael, once a boy king and now Grand Voivode of Albajulia.

It was hoped when she left here yesterday she would meet Carol in the boy prince's sick room, but her return here today was accepted as indication that if they met there was no reconciliation and that they will continue their separate paths.

Michael's illness is described as a chill. His physicians have ordered that he keep to his room until his condition improves. Although Carol has sought to keep her from Michael, Queen Helen, hearing of the illness, went immediately to Sinaia, where her son and Carol are staying.

Queen Helen's departure from Sinaia was described here as most hasty and it aroused considerable speculation as to whether she had found Michael not to be seriously ill or had not been invited to remain.

Her sister-in-law, the former Queen Elizabeth of Greece, who accompanied her to Sinaia, remained with the Grand Voivode, who recently has grown very stout and chubby.

RAILROAD HEADS SIGN FOUR-SYSTEM MERGER AGREEMENT

PACT LAID BEFORE I. C. C.

Action Follows 10 Years of Negotiation; Networks Each Worth Billions

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—Ten years of negotiation and controversy was ended today after presidents of Eastern trunk lines announced a plan for consolidating the chief railroads in their territories into four great systems. With a mileage of about 60,000 these roads comprise about one-fifth of the mileage of the entire country. Each of the four enlarged systems would be worth about $2,000,000,000.

Agreement was made last night [illegible] of a copy sent to the Interstate Commerce Commission. The officials informed the commission of contents of the letter by telephone before making it public. The agreement was signed by W. W. Atterbury of the Pennsylvania Railway, P. E. Crowley, president of the New York Central Railroad, Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and J. J. Bernet, president of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad.

Each of the railroads whose presidents signed would become a basis for an enlarged trunk line system.

ALLOCATIONS SET

The allocations agreed on were:

To the New York Central—The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad and a direct connection with the Virginian Railway at Deepwater, including joint rates and routes over that railway.

To the Pennsylvania—The Wabash, the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton and the Norfolk and Western.

To the Baltimore and Ohio—The Ann Arbor Railroad, the leading and Central Railroad of New Jersey and Western Maryland, Buffalo Rochester and Pittsburgh and Buffalo and Susquehanna, the Lehigh and Hudson River and the Chicago and Alton.

To the Chesapeake and Ohio—Nickel Plate System and the Hocking Valley will be added the Erie Railroad, the Bessemer and Lake Erie, the Pere Marquette, the Wheeling and Lake Erie, the Chicago and Eastern Illinois, and the Lehigh Valley, with certain rights to the Pennsylvania on the Lehigh Valley.

SHARE SMALL ROADS

The general plan also will recommend the assignment of the following railroads to the four systems jointly:

Lehigh and New England, the Delaware and Hudson, the Mo[illegible]a, Montour, Pittsburgh [illegible] Virginia, and the Pitts[illegible] Chartiers and Youghiogheny.

PINCHOT GIVES LEWIS ROAD JOB

MILFORD, Pa., Jan. 3.—(AP)—Gov.-elect Gifford Pinchot has announced that has asked Samuel S. Lewis, of York, to become secretary of highways and that he had accepted.

Lewis is a former auditor general and a former state treasurer, both elective offices, and at present is special deputy in the auditor general's department. He was a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor last spring, but withdrew before the primary in May, "in the interest of harmony in the party."

Lewis gained state-wide prominence while state treasurer when he opposed the administration of Gov. Fisher on the question of raising the gasoline tax to 4 cents. Lewis lost that fight. He also opposed Pinchot on a number of questions relating to state finances during Pinchot's previous administration.

PROSPERITY-BOUND! — By Quin Hall

Armstrong Challenge Upsets Caucus

we accomplish. It certainly does me good to see the solid front we are putting up."

Einstein said:

"If we stand together in this end of the state, Allegheny County is bound to get the recognition it deserves. This is the first time in 12 years that the delegation has been a unit. I feel confident that Gov. Pinchot will be bound to recognize Allegheny County."

MANSFIELD ASKS SUPPORT

But then Einstein called for nominations for president pro-tempore of the Senate. Senator Frank J. Harris nominated Senator W. D. Mansfield, who made a speech of acceptance calling on Senators Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., and H. P. Brandt to reconsider and support his candidacy against Augustus F. Daix, Jr. Mansfield said:

"There has been much talk of harmony here tonight. I hope the other two senators will reconsider and give their support to their own colleague instead of supporting a Philadelphia man who bolted the party. I hope that the delegation can work together for the betterment of the county. Nothing, not even the office itself, could give me the same satisfaction as having the solid delegation of the county for me."

ARMSTRONG LEAVES

Senator Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., arose, declared himself pledged not to vote until he gets to Harrisburg and, excusing himself, left the hall. The vote was taken, Senators Coyne, Harris and Einstein voting for Mansfield.

Then Joseph G. Armstrong, Sr., got up and spoke in angry emphatic language. Part of it was:

"There isn't a man living or dead who can put the horse whip over Joe Armstrong. The days of slavery are over. And there isn't a power in heaven that could get me to vote or ask a son of mine to vote after such a telegram as I got from Pinchot in Harrisburg. He threatened what he would do to me if I didn't bow to his will. If I was a member of the General Assembly I would listen to the people that elected me. If senators are going to Harrisburg simply to do what any one man says for them to do they shouldn't be sent there. Don't anybody ask an offspring of mine to be a slave. The days of slavery are over in Harrisburg and in Washington. Anybody who knows the Armstrongs knows that they are not slaves."

CALLS GRENET BOLTER

Armstrong sneered at the party regularity argument used by Mansfield saying:

"The man that nominated the chairman that you have just elected bolted the party."

It was Representative Samuel J. Grenet, sitting beside Mayor King.

"I fell out with one of the biggest men in Allegheny County over this. And I'm not here tonight as a politician, not like a slicker who can handle the checkerboard, but I'll leave the decision up to the people of Allegheny County as to whether I am right or wrong in standing on my own and not taking dictation from a man who wants to be dictator of the state. I never had anybody with me when I ran for office before but the people. When I ran for treasurer I had the mayor and Bill Flinn and his gang against me. When I ran for commissioner I had the gang against me, including everybody in the commissioners' office. But I won, because the people wanted me, and they are the ones I look to and there are a lot of them that owe a lot politically to Armstrong."

EINSTEIN DISTURBED

It was apparent Armstrong's speech was not part of the scheduled program. It rather upset Chairman Einstein. He said:

"Joe has been my friend for 25 years and I've been his. I've never been against him. I have the highest regard for him. This is like a ball game. We want to see the whole team win. There is no trickery. I never told Gov. Pinchot that I would support Mansfield and he never asked me to. But I believed and still believe that we should indorse our Allegheny County man. I'd rather go down to defeat than be against our own man."

Just before a motion to adjourn Representative Matthew Dunn moved to indorse Dr. Joseph G. Steele for chairman of the appropriations committee and there was not a dissenting vote.

This all of the dealing that some political observers predicted has worked out to the letter, insofar as the agreements between local leaders and Gov. Pinchot have been understood. Armstrong's outbreak was not in the cards.

DRY LAW PROBE REPORT READY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—(AP)—The law enforcement commission last night had virtually completed its report on prohibition and it was believed agreeable to at least a majority.

The position was considered remote, however, that this long-awaited document would be in congressional hands for another week, any estimate not by the unofficially announced date of January 6.

Parts of the report were said to be still incomplete pending final decisions by some of the members.

Those who seem to think that they know their political tonsorial predict that Kline and Armstrong will be in opposite corners when the bell rings for the county fight which will terminate in the primary election in September.

The caucus strengthens their argument.

NORRIS INQUIRY CALLS LUCAS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—(AP.)—More light on the source of funds and the origin of literature used in a Republican campaign against re-election of Senator Norris, of Nebraska, will be sought next Tuesday by the Senate Compaign Funds Committee.

Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the Republican National Committee, who paid for the literature, was summoned last night to appear at the Tuesday hearing.

Chairman Nye also has summoned Joseph R. Nutt, treasurer of the national committee. He is to be asked the original source of a special $50,000 bank account of the Republican organization. This fund was pledged as security for a $4,000 loan to Lucas, about $800 of which he said was spent for anti-Norris publicity.

2 TROLLEY CRASHES PROBED

Second Accident in Day, on South Side, Injures Five; Liberty Ave. Quiz Goes On

While the major accident committee of the Pittsburgh Railways Company today continued its investigation of a street car crash yesterday, when a car ran into a house at 3317 Liberty avenue, injuring nine persons, officials began an investigation into another wreck last night, in which five persons were slightly injured.

The accident committee expects to make a report Monday, on the Liberty avenue crash after it has questioned Augustus Foley, 38, operator of the car, who is in St. Francis Hospital.

Two of five women injured last night when a street car ran through an open switch and crashed into another at South Nineteenth and Carson streets, were in the South Side Hospital today suffering from shock and bruises.

They are Mrs. Ruth Felton, 26, of 511 Island avenue, McKees Rocks, and Mrs. Emma Mullen, 33, a Negro, of 465 Taylor street. Three others, Mrs. Robert Donges, 30, of 339 Suncrest street; Mrs. Cecil Stanley, 34, of 511 Island avenue, McKees Rocks, and Mrs. Anna Seligo, 22, of 1418 Mary street, suffering shock and bruises, were treated at the hospital and sent to their homes.

Police said the accident occurred when a car operated by C. B. Kitner, of 2820 Castlegate avenue, Brookline, struck the switch, became derailed and crashed into a Carson car in which the victims were passengers.

The rear trucks of the latter car, operated by Motorman Fred Holzer, of 423 Mountain street, ran off the track. Traffic was halted for 30 minutes. Damage to the cars was slight, police said.

CITY BUDGET UP TO MAYOR

The 1931 city budget, formally adopted by Council yesterday at a total of $28,747,628, has gone to the Mayor for approval and Council was to clear its desk of general business today, allowing three of its members to make a trip to Harrisburg for the organization of the Legislature Monday.

Included in the salary ordinance now resting on the mayor's desk are additions to the police payroll which make possible the creation of the new North Side police district. It has been intimated the action which officially divides Inspector Charles Faulkner's territory on the North Side may not materialize at once, although it is almost certain to come later.

Council and the mayor together have added about 225 jobs to the payroll and cut out 38. About one-half of the new openings are in the police department. Most of the new positions were added by Council in the late budget sessions of the finance committee.

Council approved the general appropriation bill yesterday by a unanimous vote of seven members, Councilman Charles Anderson being absent. Councilman Robert Garland cast the only negative vote on the salary bill.

Garland declared the salary bill provides a number of increases on which he was not consulted.

Arrest Noted Flier, Accused Of Rum Import by Air

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 3.—(AP)—Federal officers announced here W. B. Atwater, New York pilot of a 17-passenger seaplane which stopped here December 31 en route from Long Island to Vera Cruz, Mex., was arrested New Year's Day on a 2-year-old charge of importing liquor into the United States by airplane from Bimini, nearby British island.

Atwater gained release on $2,000 bond, the officials said, prior to his departure for Havana and Vera Cruz.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—(AP)—William B. Atwater is one of the country's best known flying men. He is the husband of a former wife of the late United States Senator Thomas C. Platt.

He made a non-refueling world flight record in an amphibian plane, with a fractured ankle, staying up 22 hours 18 minutes 32 seconds over Manhasset Bay last fall.

A few days later he and Enea Bossi, president of the American Aeronautical Corporation, escaped death in a seaplane spin in the air. They were rescued by boats.

Heir to $500,000, Printer Would Seek 'Oasis'

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 3.—(AP)—Carlos O'Brien, itinerant printer, knows what he will do with a half-million dollars inheritance, he said.

"I'll take a trip abroad, preferably to some country where there is no Eighteenth Amendment."

O'Brien, who had been cagey since news dispatches told of a large estate awaiting him in Ireland, was located here last night.

Today, surrounded by reporters, printers and a lawyer or two at a newspaper plant here, O'Brien scouted the idea he was to inherit a large sum. None of his family had much money, he said.

Among the eminent statesmen scheduled to write for the Sunday Sun-Telegraph in almost immediate succession are WINSTON CHURCHILL, former British Chancellor of the Exchequer; PAUL PAINLEVE, former Premier and now a member of the present cabinet of France, and MUSSOLINI, who will continue his articles.

LEAGUE PROFIT CUT TO 50-1

The Pro-perity League, Inc., recently formed organization offering large monetary rewards to members, has cut down the size of the possible winnings to 50 to 1. This reduction in the scope of their program came at about the same time that an attorney for the Pittsburgh Store Fixture and Equipment Company attached the league's bank account.

The company sued the league for the money for goods it claimed to have furnished for the league's new headquarters at 5493 Penn avenue.

The league membership is said to be now in the neighborhood of 17,500, but observers say the waiting lines have not been so long at headquarters recently.

The league for a time offered its members the possibility of collecting $1,238 for $1. It was a chain proposition, each member obtaining five new ones, with a sliding scale of commissions gradually bringing wealth to those in the game at an early stage.

RIVERSIDE, Cal., Jan. 3.—(AP.)—Investigators of the district attorney's office here today sought to learn the identity of two masked men who tarred and feathered Mrs. Anna Wood, 60-year-old homesteader.

Mrs. Wood, suffering from severe burns caused by the application of hot tar in a barn on her homestead ranch early New Year's day, was unable to identify her assailants.

PERSHING LAUDS MARNE HERO

By GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—By the death of Marshal Joffre the world loses one of its greatest military figures and France a devoted patriot. His conduct of operations while in command of the French armies in 1914 to the end of 1916 was characterized by great leadership.

As the "Hero of the Marne" he saved the Allies from defeat. He had unlimited confidence in the French soldier and knew how to appeal to his patriotism.

Under the most trying circumstances he was never perturbed or excited.

He had a sympathetic friendship for America. My association with him was always most delightful. I was glad to call him my friend and his passing gives me a deep sense of personal loss.

CAROLINE, KINDLY HERO, OUTLIVED OTHER LEADERS

Of the great military figures of World War days, Marshal Joffre was one of the last to go. One by one his contemporaries, friend and foe alike, succumbed to the infirmities of age. He remained still alert, active and beloved while France's "tiger," Georges Clemenceau, passed away in his modest Paris flat. He grieved when Marshal Ferdinand Foch joined the galaxy of immortal military geniuses in another world.

He witnessed the passing of Field Marshal Earl Haig, commander of the British forces during the war, and vivid memories were aroused in his mind when Admiral von Tirpitz, defender of ruthless German submarine warfare, preceded him to the grave.

SIMPLE, KINDLY HERO

To the end, the marshal was known in France and through the length and breadth of the civilized world as "Papa" Joffre. Stern and uncompromising as he may have been in command; jealous of his authority and staunch in defense of his own methods against countless detractors, he remained a simple, kindly hero, so dear to the heart of France that he was almost a living idol. The personification of "Victoire" against seemingly hopeless odds.

Joffre died as he had lived, with his sufferings hidden as much as possible from the people who loved him. Rather than arouse alarm, Mme. Joffre for days refused to allow any word to be broadcast of his grave illness. Only a little over a week ago she cheerfully told newspaper men that he was well and happy and yet he was then far gone down the road that has no turning.

A younger man might have survived the illness of the old war hero, who would have been 79 tomorrow. But the gangrene persisted despite the amputation and his extreme weakness made a second operation impossible. Helpless before the inexorable advance of death, the physicians could do naught but attempt to ease the pain of the war-scattered soldier. They took upon themselves the duties of nurses, working in long shifts at his bedside in the hope of alleviating his agony.

"Stand fast!" thundered forth his immortal message, and the thousands of men who crowded the [illegible] of Northern France knew that "Papa" of the kindly visage but immovable will intended that death should be accepted rather than retreat.

It was this same tenacity that enabled Joffre to hold on to life. He parried with life only after the most astounding battle with death. His work completed, his task done, with a niche carved for all time in history's hall of fame, he surrendered only after the onslaught of gangrenous poisoning had sapped the last vestige of strength, permitting death to close down like a blazing sunset on a battlefield of glory.

Coolidge Lauds Building And Loan Associations

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 3.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

Before we hastily conclude that the people do not have the capacity to take care of themselves we should consider the building and loan associations that are today celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of their existence in this country. They began with the meeting of three people in a suburb of Philadelphia. That meeting compares with the Williams College haystack prayer meeting which became the American board of Foreign Missions.

Calvin Coolidge

These loan associations now number over twelve thousand and have property of over eight billion dollars. They have financed the purchase of eight million homes and are estimated to have helped house five million people in the last ten years. In six years their assets have doubled. In general they represent a movement financed by wage earners who have benefited by the periodic investment of their savings and by the opportunity to buy their own homes on the installment principle. The resulting good is beyond measure. It is only a little sector of the economic life of the people, but taken in conjunction with the farms, the life insurance policies, the savings banks and the small stockholders, is a demonstration that the wealth of the country is distributed among the people.

According to the story reaching Buenos Aires, two members of the Niambiquata tribe of Indians, receiving wounds in the jungle went to Miss Mildred P. Kratz, of Wheaton, Ill., who was at the mission, for treatment.

One of the Indians recovered, but the other died. Inflamed against the supposed slayers, who had treated their comrade, the Indians watched for an opportunity when some of the missions workers were absent and attacked in overwhelming numbers.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburgher Betrothed In South

The new year always brings news of betrothals and weddings, and what more appropriate than that a troth should be pledged on New Year's Day? On Thursday the George O. Palmers, of Miami Beach, Fla., entertained at a tea in their home, at which announcement was made of the engagement of their daughter, Mary Frances Palmer, to Frederick George Bannerot, Jr., son of the Frederick G. Bannerots, of the Schenley Apartments.

Mary belongs to a distinguished Southern family and is one of the most prominent members of the debutante set of Miami. She is a graduate of Stuart Hall, Staunton, Va., and attended Florida State College for Women. She is a member of Chi Omega, and of the Sixteen Club and the Junior League of Miami.

Her fiance is a graduate of Shady Side Academy and Sheffield Scientific School, Yale University, class of '29. He is a member of the York Hall Club and Chi Phi fraternity, and for two years was a member of the Yale Golf Team, it will interest you to know. Locally he is a member of the Oakmont Country Club and the Pittsburgh Field Club.

* * *

Before I talk about any of the events of yesterday and of last night, I want to mention a coming event which will hold much interest for thespian-loving society folks.

Play Date Selected

The date is named for the next Stage and Play production, February 10, to be given again in the Twentieth Century clubhouse. I do know that Carroll Fitzhugh is author of the play his own organization will give, but I'll have to tell you the name later.

Bennett Oliver will make his debut as an actor in this play, and I know who two more members of the cast will be, Mrs. Oliver and Alan G. Donnelly. In charge of the production are Mrs. George P. Bassett, Jr., and Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby.

* * *

Ever so many folks, from grandmothers to grandchildren, attended the Princeton Triangle Club play, "The Tiger Smiles," last night in Syria Mosque.

Many See Club Play

Mrs. Robert McCague I saw in the crowd, and she looked smart in black chiffon and lace. Mrs. James McKay chose black crepe and lace, and Mrs. H. C. Bughman, Jr., dark red velvet. The junior Charles A. Painters were entertaining in a box.

Others I noticed were Mrs. John J. Bissell who wore delphinium blue crepe with slippers of the same shade; Helen Leovy in peach colored chiffon; Harriet La Salle Dorrance, the debutante, white satin; Mrs. T. Clifton Jenkins, black velvet. With her were her two daughters, Elizabeth and Dorothea.

Striking indeed was the nasturtium red satin gown Mrs. Louise R. Schmertz, Jr., chose, over which she wore a white hare jacket. Others I noticed were Mrs. Maitland Alexander, Mrs. Ralph W. Harbison, the Wilson A. Campbells, the James Lyall Stewarts, the George S. Batons, the Frank Adair Leovys, the Floyd Clarksons and Martha Jamison.

* * *

Nearly all the members of the younger set were there. Mollie Cullum was there, wearing a black velvet ensemble.

Younger Set Smart

Peggy Milligan in gold brocade; Mary Franklin Robinson, eggshell satin with which she combined an emerald green velvet wrap and emerald green slippers, and Caroline Cuttenden in turquoise blue chiffon and lace.

I saw Mary Black in apple-green chiffon; Mary Magee, the debutante, in white crepe and rhinestones; Jane Sloan in a vivid gown of cerise crepe; Janet McKinney in figured taffeta, and two of the debs, Martha Leggate, in turquoise blue chiffon velvet, and Madelaine Alexander.

* * *

Array of Gay Hues

* * *

Before the Princeton Triangle play there were two notable social events. The William Booth Trainers of Ridge avenue, gave a tea yesterday afternoon in the Pittsburgh Golf Club in honor of Mary Franklin Robinson, daughter of the William Christopher Robinsons. Yellow roses with yellow tapers decorated the tea tables.

Galaxy of Parties

And among the many dinners given before the Triangle performance was one that the Wilson A. Campbells, of Sewickley, gave in their home for their debutante niece, Elizabeth Booth Miller. Debs of this year and a few of the past season were guests.

And after the play was over, the Thomas J. McKays entertained with one of the most attractive parties of the season. They gave a supper dance in the University Club in honor of their debutante daughter, Elizabeth McKay.

* * *

Southern smilax festooned the walls of the ballroom, with silver-dipped poinsettias and smilax decorating the wall brackets. Enclosing the orchestra was a hedge of Washington fir.

Supper Dance

Supper was served at small tables with covers laid for 400. Poinsettias and red berries with tapers to match were used in decorating.

* * *

Mrs. C. E. Rafter, of Oakmont, is entertaining informally at a tea tomorrow afternoon in the Lonsdale Vue Country Club.

* * *

An interesting event last night was a dinner Mrs. Leonard G. Woods gave in her home, Fifth avenue, honoring Mrs. W. Harry Brown, of Pittsburgh, New York and London.

Indian Sings For Outlook Alliance

Mrs. H. D. Stark, president of the Outlook Alliance, provided a surprise program for her guests when she entertained yesterday for the members and other clubwomen of the city at her home in Beechwood boulevard.

The "surprise" and it certainly was that, for the club had never had anything like it before, was the appearance of Chief Ho-To-Pi, Cheyenne baritone, a striking figure in his full chieftain regalia, complete to the last detail of paint and many feathers.

Chief Ho-To-Pi sang a number of "Indian" songs — Cadman's "Land of the Sky Blue Water," "Love Call" from "Rose Marie," and several others, but he was at his most entertaining and interesting in Cheyenne tribal songs which he accompanied on the tom-tom and gave with appropriate dancing. Edward S. Tebbutt was at the piano for the English songs.

Mrs. Stark, Mrs. Aden I. Fillmore, Mrs. E. B. Heyser, Mrs. Mary Rhoads McBride and Mrs. W. Z. Burns, all officers in the Alliance, received together and the hospitality committee under Mrs. P. W. Dutton's chairmanship had charge of the charmingly appointed tea, in which the idea of spring predominated even to the lily-melded ices. Four yellow tapers surrounded the centerpiece of yellow roses, narcissi and scabiosa.

To Talk On Voice

* * *

That the maximum enjoyment of life is produced by the union of brains and character, that character can only be had by association with people of principle, and that the product of schools should be brains, Dr. J. Edgar Park, president of Wheaton College, said in his address before the Friday Morning Club of the League of Women Voters yesterday. He was speaking on "Philistine or Highbrow?"

Who is to decide, he asked, which is the more cultured person, the woman who is keenly enjoying a sonnet which her sister could neither translate nor appreciate, or that sister who is having exquisite pleasure giving her baby a bath? Dr. Park poked a good deal of fun at both "the exquisite highbrow" and "the practical Philistine."

When mildly annoyed by the general acceptance of a work of art or science, the highbrow pronounces it superficial, and when enraged by the popular success of someone, he refers to him as well-meaning, he said. He spoke of the changing view in American universities and said the usual examination today is one for which the student cannot cram, because it is not an examination in facts, but in taste and judgment and is based on that part of knowledge which has become part of the individual. The aim of education, he said, is to turn out real people, useful in the ways of the world but no enslaved by them.

3-Cent Loaves Sold As Bakers Open War

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—(AP.)—Bread sold as low as three cents a loaf in the Lawndale district yesterday. A bread "war" between two groups of bakers was responsible. The fight started a week ago when 130 bakers employed by members of the Hebrew Master Bakers' Union, refused to accept a 25 per cent cut in wages and were locked out, they said. The former employes set up their own bakery.

25 Wives Laid Off To Give Men Jobs

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 3.—(AP.)—Twenty-five married women employes of the Spokane, Portland and Seattle Railway were on six-month leaves of absence today, given by W. F. Turner, president. Their places were filled by men with families to support. All the women's husbands are gainfully employed, company officials said. If normal conditions have not returned at the end of six months, they said, the leaves will become permanent.

TULLE FROCK IS OFTEN SEEN AT SMART GATHERINGS AND SHOWS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

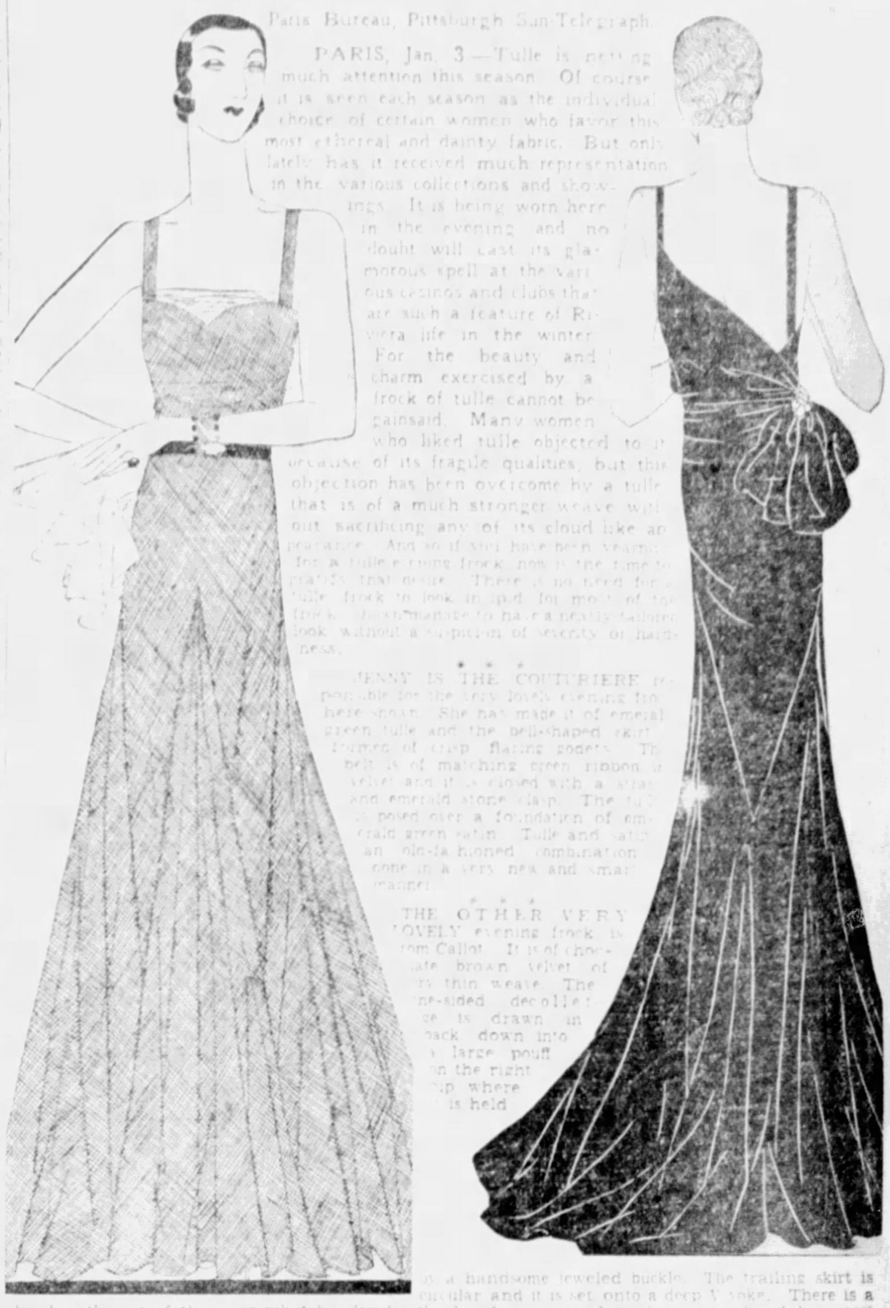
PARIS, Jan. 3.—Tulle is getting much attention this season. Of course it is seen each season as the individual choice of certain women who favor this most ethereal and dainty fabric. But only lately has it received much representation in the various collections and showings. It is being worn here in the evening and no doubt will cast its glamorous spell at the various casinos and clubs that are such a feature of Riviera life in the winter. For the beauty and charm exercised by a frock of tulle cannot be gainsaid. Many women who liked tulle objected to it because of its fragile qualities, but this objection has been overcome by a tulle that is of a much stronger weave without sacrificing any of its cloud like appearance. And so if you have been yearning for a tulle evening frock now is the time to gratify that desire. There is no need for the frock to look limped for most of the frocks are contrive to have a crisply tailored look without a suspicion of severity or hardness.

* * *

JENNY IS THE COUTURIERE responsible for the very lovely evening frock here shown. She has made it of emerald green tulle and the bell-shaped skirt consists of crisp flaring godets. The belt is of matching green ribbon velvet and it is closed with a silver and emerald stone clasp. The tulle is posed over a foundation of emerald green satin. Tulle and satin an ideal combination, done in a very new and smart manner.

* * *

THE OTHER VERY LOVELY evening frock is from Callot. It is of chocolate brown velvet of its thin weave. The one-sided decollete is drawn in back down into a large pouff on the right hip where it is held by a handsome jeweled buckle. The trailing skirt is circular and it is set onto a deep V yoke. There is a hip-length coat of the same velvet bordered with blue fox to complete this somber-hued but most striking evening ensemble.



AKERSON QUITS AS HOOVER AIDE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—(AP.)—George Akerson will leave his post as secretary to President Hoover to enter private business probably about the middle of January.

His resignation and its acceptance was announced late yesterday with an expression of regret by President Hoover. A successor to Mr. Hoover said has not been chosen. Akerson has had charge of the President's public relations, the other two secretaries, Walter Newton and Lawrence Richey, having specialized duties.

The President gave as Akerson's reason for departure the offer at a post with the Paramount Publix Corporation at two or three times the salary he receives at the White House.

Air Flight Made In Record Time

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 3.—(AP.)—S. J. Samson, pilot of the National Air Transport, landed at Newark yesterday from Cleveland, in two hours, 10 minutes, said at the airport to have been the fastest time ever recorded on a scheduled airway. The speed was 192.6 per hour for the 417 miles.

Samson left Cleveland at 1:35 p. m. and landed here at 3:45 p. m., with 800 pounds of mail and seven passengers. He was aided by a 72-mile tailwind.

The officiating clergyman will be Rev. Dr. W. A. R. Goodwin, rector of historic Bruton Parish Church, Williamsburg. Miss Pollard will give away the bride. The attendants will be Miss Fenly Pollard, of Marion, Va., as maid of honor, and Benjamin Booth, Jr., of Danville, Va., best man.

PANAMA ENVOY NEW PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—(INS.)—Less than 24 hours of revolution today had yielded the little republic of Panama a new President in the person of 48-year-old Ricardo Alfaro, veteran Liberal, who for nine years has served here as Panama's minister to the United States.

Offered the presidency by cable after the overthrow of the regime headed by President Florencio H. Arosemena, Alfaro took ten hours to consider, then accepted.

Latest reports of the Panama revolution sent the State Department by T. Roy Davis, minister to Panama, said the Panama Supreme Court had chosen Dr. R. L. Ballen president of the court. These came almost simultaneously with receipt by Alfaro of the proffer of the presidency from Dr. Manuel Heriate as "acting president" of the Supreme Court," according to Panama legation officials. Alfaro said the report that Ballen had been named Supreme Court president must have been a mistake.

Alfaro twice visited Secretary of State Stimson prior to accepting the offer of the presidency. The State Department revealed this country intended no intervention moves in Panama.

Peace Pact to Fight About

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

in Japan never realizes that some day he will be a run up and down a stocking.

Otherwise, everything is all right. Business is booming and finances have tightened up like a rope at a lynching.

This is the third day of the new year. Alabama beat Washington State, 24 to 0. Which is the same score that Alabama gave to Underwood.

We're approaching normality by uneasy stages.

Whatever goes up must come down. But it's only the smart kid who can sell his kite after the string has busted.

We seem to have adopted the European recipe for a meal.

Which consists of drinking tea and knocking the government.

Like the old white hoss with the heaves and spring-halt, our government ain't bad for the shape it's in.

We're something like the burglar crawling through the busted window. We'll get through all right. But not without some scratches.

The woofing of the calamity howlers will never be a community chorus.

The old ostrich swallowed a cocanut. It wouldn't go down. And he couldn't cough it up.

So he used it for an Adam's apple.

We learned a lesson in Wall Street. Trouble is that we still love our teachers.

Last year was pretty bad. But even that had its advantages.

We know one exhausted business man who got his health back by sleeping in his office with the window open.

You can either make hay while the sun shines. Or hey-hey while the moon-shines.

Now we are off in a cloud of determination and decimal points.

This is a working nation. We see our mistakes. It wasn't the Eighteenth Amendment that sobered us up. It was the high tariff.

And see how many spokes we can pull out.

TESTS BUREAU SET UP BY COUNTY

Determines Quality of Materials Used for Construction Projects

JAMES B. SANSOM,
Secretary, Allegheny County Planning Commission.

One of the first and most important steps taken by Allegheny County, following the organization of the Department of Public Works, was the creation of the bureau of tests and specifications under the direction of P. J. Freeman, chief engineer. During the present year the bureau of tests inspected 20,000 tons of steel used in the bridges being built by Allegheny County, conducting 5,461 tests of steel and bronze. Among the most important of these was the McKees Rocks Bridge with 16,000 tons of which 10,000 tons have been inspected to date.

SAMPLES TAKEN

During the construction of roads, concrete samples in the shape of cylindrical borings are taken from the job. These are stored and cured under field conditions and later are brought to the laboratory for a crushing test which determines the quality of the concrete when placed in the structure.

Whenever it is desired to open sections of highway at early periods, concrete beams are made which approximate the actual conditions in the concrete slab, these are tested by means of a beam-breaking machine attached to one of the bureau trucks. The rupture data obtained from these tests is a complete indication of the bearing strength of the pavement.

LABORATORY TESTS

Samples of cement, sand stone and gravel are taken from every job at least once a week and brought to the laboratory for check-testing to determine if these materials comply with the requirements of the specifications. The asphaltic concrete materials used in the county's own plants are sampled and tests made in a field laboratory and in the main laboratory to determine their suitability for use. To determine the quality of these materials 11,665 tests were made last year.

The bureau also prepares all specifications and in conjunction with other county officials inspects materials, supplies and construction work for all departments of Allegheny County.

FREEMAN TO SPEAK

The Allegheny County Department of Public Works Bureau of Tests is noted for having one of the finest-equipped testing laboratories in the country. A report from the bureau of tests accompanies all final estimates for payment of contracts.

So great has been the interest of engineers in the work of the bureau of tests that Mr. Freeman has been asked to prepare and read a technical paper on "Control of Materials for Highways and Bridges" for the next meeting of the Engineers Society of Western Pennsylvania to be held in the William Penn Hotel on the evening of January 6.

AUTO SHOW CONTEST

$300 CASH PRIZES — 200 SHOW Tickets

(The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph co-operating with the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association, is donating these prizes for the best answers and slogans.)

Here is the Sun-Telegraph Automobile Puzzle Contest, based on passenger cars to be exhibited in the forthcoming annual Automobile Show to be held at Motor Square Garden, January 17 to 24, inclusive.

One or two puzzle pictures, in each of which will be concealed the name of an automobile and in each of which are hidden several words, will be published every day in the daily and Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

Readers of the Sun-Telegraph are invited to find the names of the automobiles and to name the hidden words in each puzzle and send them to the Auto Show Contest Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, 612 Grant street, together with a good slogan, descriptive of the Automobile Show. YOU MUST SEND ALL YOUR ANSWERS AT THE SAME TIME IN ONE ENVELOPE AT THE COMPLETION OF THE CONTEST. ACCURACY, NEATNESS AND CLEVERNESS OF SLOGAN WILL BE CONSIDERED IN AWARDING THE PRIZES.

Prizes totaling $300 in gold and 200 show tickets are to be awarded the winners in the contest. Be sure to put your name and address with the slogan at the top of the first page. Your name should appear on each page you send in.

The final pictures will be published January 15. All answers must be in the hands of the Auto Show Contest Editor no later than noon, Friday, January 16. The winners will be announced at the Automobile Show, Monday evening, January 19, and in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph January 20.

At various times during the contest, the names of passenger cars to be exhibited at the show will be printed. From this list contestants are to pick the names of the cars.

CONTESTANTS ARE NOT TO SEND IN ANSWERS UNTIL THE FINAL PUZZLE PICTURES HAVE BEEN PRINTED. THEN SEND THEM IN ALL TOGETHER AT THE SAME TIME. WRITE THE NAMES OF THE CARS ON SEPARATE SHEETS OF PAPER WITH THE HIDDEN WORDS OF EACH PICTURE IN THE ORDER IN WHICH THE PICTURES APPEARED.

Your slogan must accompany the answers. It may be either rhyme or prose and should be applicable to the Automobile Show. It must be short, snappy and clever. Remember, it is an important factor in deciding the winners.

Any person is eligible to enter this contest except employes of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph or members of their families.

The contest started December 28. If you have missed any of the puzzles you can get back copies of the Sun-Telegraph by addressing the circulation department. Send three cents for daily papers or 10 cents for Sunday's, or the equivalent in postage stamps.

Control of P. & W. Va. May Be Divided

By GEORGE B. SNYDER.

FORMATION OF THE Taplin trunk line from the Great Lakes through Pittsburgh to the Atlantic Seaboard will be blocked if the four major eastern systems are successful in convincing the commission to adopt their new consolidation plan.

While it was generally understood a few days ago that the proposed Taplin line to be formed from the Western Maryland, Pittsburgh and West Virginia and Wheeling and Lake Erie would be kept intact and would be allotted to one of the four systems, the announcement made by the carriers yesterday proposes the separation of these roads.

The existing stock control arrangements would be continued in force. The Baltimore and Ohio would take over the Western Maryland. The Van Sweringen group would retain the Wheeling and Lake Erie.

No Mention of P. & W. Va.

NO MENTION WAS made of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia which is controlled by the Pennroad Corporation, an organization formed about two years ago by the Pennsylvania Railroad. It is generally understood that the carriers plan to operate this as a joint terminal line.

While it is easy to see how the carriers arrived at such a compromise agreement, there is much doubt about the attitude of the Interstate Commerce Comission on the proposal.

Taplin Line Favored

THE COMMISSION HAS consistently put its stamp of approval on the plans of F. E. Taplin, president of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia, and C. F. Taplin, vice president, to build a new trunk line from the Great Lakes to Baltimore with their road as a nucleus. This attitude, undoubtedly, had much to do with the granting of permission to extend the road to Connellsville where a connection with the Western Maryland is possible.

A blockade to the formation of the trunk line would materially reduce the value of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia's new investment in this extension. It is difficult to understand how the commission could consistently make such a reversal in its attitude.

Sale of Roads Ordered

IN RECENT DECISIONS the commission ordered the Baltimore and Ohio to sell the Western Maryland and the Van Sweringen interests to dispose of the Wheeling and Lake Erie.

In the absence of any formal presentation of the plan, the commission has not had an opportunity to express its attitude toward the agreement of the four leading rail interests. The principal point of difference between the four system plan, as it is understood, and the commission's five system plan lies in the allotment of the roads which would otherwise go into the Wabash-Seaboard fifth system.

The four system plan would give the Wabash and the Norfolk and Western to the Pennsylvania.

To Get Lackawanna

THE NEW YORK CENTRAL would get the Lackawanna. The Baltimore and Ohio would get the Reading, Jersey Central, Ann Arbor, Monon, Chicago and Alton and Western Maryland.

The Van Sweringen interests would unite the Erie, Pere Marquette, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, Wheeling and Lake Erie and Lehigh Valley to the Chesapeake and Ohio and the Nickel Plate.

To Submit Separate Plans

IT IS PROBABLE that each of the four rail groups will present separate proposals to the commission at about the same time. Each of the individual proposals will be in accord.

In all probability the actual completion of mergers under the plan will not take place for a long time. The commission undoubtedly will hold extensive hearings before it will agree to abandon its own idea on desirable railroad mergers. Political opposition also may develop into a serious stumbling block.

BUSINESS INDEX MAKES GAIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Though the the death-rattle of 1930 is sufficiently sweet music in everybody's ears, the finale of the rather sour symphony of the past year adds some reassuring notes. The records of the last week of the year are much less feeble than was expected, and are in some respects more encouraging than those of 1929, says the Business Week, in its report covering the week ended today.

Business sentiment is steadier and more alert, and the railroad consolidation news strikes a constructive note to start the new year. It is still hard to see very far into 1931, but the atmosphere is slowly clearing and we can give 1930 a good swift kick into oblivion with more confidence that it won't return.

The index of trade activity rose again from 76.9 per cent to 77.8 per cent for the week ended December 27. In the same week a year ago it settled at 91.8 per cent. Building contracts, merchandise car loadings, steel production and check payments have held out surprisingly well against seasonal declines that might have been much more severe at the end of a bad year. Basic commodity prices seem to have exhausted the possibilities of further decline. Though the tangible effects of lowered Federal Reserve rediscount rates on the bond market are still to be tested, increasing support may be expected if the usual contraction of outstanding reserve credit is not insisted upon when the large volume of currency in circulation returns to the banks in January.

BANK DEBITS DECLINE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—For the week ending December 27, 1930, bank debits showed a decline from the week previous and were also under the corresponding week in 1929. Business failures decreased from the week previous, even after corrections are made for the number of business days. Total loans and discounts of Federal Reserve member banks continued the fractional decrease of the previous four weeks, but in comparison with the same week in 1929 a decline of 6 per cent was recorded. Interest rates were the same as a week ago for time money, but call money rates were lower. Both rates were materially lower than a year ago. Prices of representative stocks declined to the lowest point of the year, while bond prices rose slightly. The Federal Reserve ratio, while declining slightly, was considerably higher than a year ago.

Wholesale commodity prices dropped 0.5 points last week to the lowest recorded this year. Farm products, textiles, metals and building materials groups alone rose during the week. Cotton middling and iron and steel prices were the same as for the previous week. The receipts of wheat at important centers continued to increase over the previous week, while cotton receipts continued to decline. Cotton movements are under this time last year.

Westinghouse Gets $500,000 Contract

An order in excess of $500,000 was received by Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, which includes two 13,800-volt water wheel generators of the umbrella type to be used by the Safe Harbor Water Power Corporation in the new Aldred hydro electric development of the Susquehanna River.

Detroit Gasoline Price War Ends

DETROIT, Jan. 3.—Detroit's gasoline price war, which sent prices as low as 11 cents a gallon, three cents state tax included, appeared to have ended tonight.

Two of the largest corporations announced that the price of straight run gasoline will be boosted 5.3 cents at all their stations at midnight, bringing it to 17.8 cents, tax included. The largest of the independent companies announced a boost of from 11 to 16 cents. No explanations were offered by any of the companies.

Stock Exchange Topics

National Dairy Products In Position to Benefit From Trade Upturn

National Dairy Products is in a good position to benefit from a resumption of more normal conditions. Even in 1930, the company did remarkably well. For the first half net income was equal to $2.16 a share, compared with $1.85 in the corresponding period of 1929. Conservative interests have estimated that for the entire year approximately $4 a share will be shown. It is possible that the decline in some of the commodities used by the company for raw material may result in an inventory loss, but the amount is likely to be comparatively small.

Many indications are seen that group operations are likely to be attempted in Anaconda early in the current year. Some accumulation has been in progress during all the recent reactions. The buying has come through houses which often have acted for important interests in the company. The company is in good financial condition. Declaration of the regular dividend about 10 days ago was taken to reflect confidence of the management in the future.

Interests in Trico Products state that when final results are compiled for 1930, it will be shown that the company did comparatively well in an off year. It has been predicted that 1930 net income would be 15 per cent under the 1929 figure, which is a much smaller loss than will be recorded in the automobile or accessories industries. One reason is the limited amount of competition offered the company.

When so-called trust shares come into favor again, Adams Express is likely to attract considerable attention. The company has a good record and net profits for 1930, an admittedly unsatisfactory year for investment trusts, are likely to be in the neighborhood of $2 a share, a good showing. Dividends are paid at the rate of $1.60 a share annually. Management of the company is in the hands of experienced bankers.

Owing to conservative policies as to disbursements pursued over a number of years, the majority of railroad dividend rates at present in effect can be maintained during a period of depression much more lengthy than that which has occurred, Standard Statistics Company says. During the past 12 months, despite progressive declines in net, only six roads have curtailed payments to stockholders. On the other hand, 22 companies have increased regular rates or declared extras.

Wall Street is not showing and disposition to jump at conclusions. That is the financial community, or at least that part of it which is interested in the speculative market, does not seek to interpret the turn into the new year as something destined to definitely change the immediate character of the market. On the contrary there is no effort to minimize such unfavorable developments as the market may be forced to withstand over the next little while. The Street recognizes the approaching fourth quarter corporations as probably constituting a "high hurdle" for the market, and realizes also that first quarter statements may not make extremely bullish reading. The Street will be staisfied if the market "stops losing blood," as one observer put it, that is if recent heavy selling pressure subsides and paves the way for a period of quiet orderly trading.

Acreage of Winter Wheat Is Lower

Acreage of winter wheat planted this fall by farmers in Pennsylvania is 6 per cent less than the seeded area in the fall of 1929, according to the report issued by the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service, Harrisburg. This increase is 5 per cent less than was indicated in the August intentions to plant. Planting intentions were not carried out account of the drought at both plowing and planting time.

The acreage sown this fall is estimated to be 1,076,00 acres compared with 1,145,00 acres sown in the fall of 1929, of which 1,116,000 acres remained to be harvested this year. Abandonment, due to winter killing, has usually not exceeded 3 per cent; last year it amounted to 2½ per cent.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

Forbes

One Prophecy That Has Not Proved Wrong!

By B. C. FORBES

Mr. Forbes

THIS COLUMN said in May: "A partnership in J. P. Morgan & Company would be a logical opening for S. Parker Gilbert on his return after having earned a unique reputation in Europe for his handling of German reparation payments. He is only 37, and was but 31 when he took over the duties of agent general for reparation payments when Owen D. Young withdrew.

"Mr. Gilbert is a lawyer but had financial experience as Under-Secretary of the Treasury in Washington with Secretary Mellon, who spotted his young assistant as a brilliant comer. Probably more $100,000-a-year offers will be tendered young Gilbert than have ever been pressed upon any man of his age. There isn't a law firm in America that wouldn't gladly embrace him as a partner. The chances are, however, that he will be captured by the world of finance, where the highest rewards reach astounding figures.

"Perhaps Mr. Gilbert will step into the opening created in the Morgan firm by Dwight W. Morrow's withdrawal. He was the legal luminary of the house. His 13 years with Morgan made Morrow rich."

Mr. Gilbert, now 38, this week began as a Morgan partner—making one 1930 prophecy that hasn't proved wrong! He will be doubly valuable, first, because of his legal knowledge and, second, because of his unrivaled intimacy with European conditions and problems.

Of the 19 Morgan & Company partners, four are sons of partners: Junius Spencer Morgan, Jr.; Henry Sturgis Morgan, Thomas Stilwell Lamont and Henry Pomeroy Davison. Three sons of the Kuhn, Loeb Company partners have just been admitted into that international banking firm: John M. Schiff, son of Mortimer L. Schiff and grandson of the late Jacob M. Schiff; Gilbert W. Kahn, son of Otto H. Kahn, and Frederick M. Warburg, son of Felix M. Warburg.

America in time will, like Europe, develop its own financial and business dynasties.

ONE COMPANY, General Tire and Rubber, has done something unusual, of special interest to workers and other employers. It has declared an extra dividend of 4 per cent on its common stock and has set aside an equal sum "primarily to finance out of season sales in order to make employment more uniform all year around." President W. O'Neal explains. He adds:

"It will also provide money which may be loaned to any of the employes in our regular departments who may be temporarily laid off. This money will be advanced to them through the General Tire Acceptance Corporation, one of our subsidiary companies, so that they may have the equivalent of five days' work each week.

"As our plant is now operating fully, there will, of course, be no need for such loans to our workers at this time.

"While we do not expect to take unusual risks, we expect to be able to level off our sales picture by absorbing financing costs during ordinarily dull months. This will help to spread over the winter months some of the business that always comes with a rush when warm weather arrives.

"When the directors decided to pay an extra dividend this year, they also decided that they would cut in two parts the amount available for this extra dividend, so that workers might get as square a deal as the stockholders.

"We do not regard this as a philanthropic move. We believe that the saving in plant costs which will result will take care of the sum which we have set aside. We believe that experience will show that it has been a wise step to use a part of our extra dividend in this way. If so, it is possible that we may do the same thing with other dividends in the future."

Slowly, but rather surely, wage earners are beginning to receive greater consideration at the hands of thoughtful business concerns. It would hardly be an exaggeration to say that prosperity is more common among companies treating their workers handsomely than among callous companies.

EINSTEIN HAS made one discovery since reaching the United States: He has found here "the joy of life and the joy of work harmoniously combined. Added to this is the spirit of ambition which pervades your very being and seems to make the day's work like a happy child at play."

Throughout the rest of the world work is looked upon as a necessary evil, as a drab means to earning a living. Little or no pleasure is taken in the daily task. "Living" consists wholly of other things—domestic pleasure, entertainment, athletics, travel, art, etc.

Here the happiest beings usually are those who derive genuine satisfaction from their daily duties. We look upon work as an integral part, and a large part of life and living. We do not regard work as drudgery, as slavery. Most of us would sooner work than not work had we the choice. It is not so with the English, French, Italians, Latin-Americans.

After all, isn't our attitude the wiser? Doesn't it produce a happier life, as well as greater abundance?

Admittedly, there are Americans who carry work too far just as there are foreigners who carry loafing too far. But surely the one is a less commendable fault than the other.

WALL STREET apparently didn't have a headache after its New Year celebration. The stock market yesterday acted quite cheerfully.

PUGH ELECTED EXCHANGE HEAD

Started as Board Boy on Local Market in 1900; Predicts Trade Boom

Claude F. Pugh, who started to work for the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange 31 years ago as a board boy, was elected president of the institution yesterday. Mr. Pugh was born in Toronto, O., on February 22, 1881. He was educated in the public school there and in high school here.

After spending the first four years of his business life with the exchange, he left to help form the Moorehead Publishing Company. At present he is secretary and treasurer of that organization, which is the official publishing company for the exchange.

WAS VICE PRESIDENT

He became connected with J. H. Holmes & Co., in 1920, and has been a partner in the firm since 1925. He has been a director of the local exchange for many years and was vice president for two years. He also served as chairman of the securities committee for many years.

In discussing the prospects for the coming year Mr. Pugh said:

"Business is thoroughly deflated. Commodity prices, inventories and production all have been depressed below the levels of the last dull period in 1927. Our industrial corporations are in an exceptionally strong position. They have large cash reserves. Many of them reduced their funded debt and paid for new expansion during 1928 and 1929 by the sale of stock. The past year has forced them to cut operating costs to a minimum. Nearly every business factor indicates that the stage is set for a revival. While I think that business will be slow in getting started, prosperity will be here soon."

A. L. Brinham, secretary, and C. J. Holman, chairman, have been reappointed by the newly elected board of directors.

CHAPLIN SEES UPWARD TURN

Pointing out that the present depression lacks many of the most serious aspects of depressions within his own experience in the past, J. C. Chaplin, president of The Colonial Trust Company, in a radio talk from KDKA last night declared that there is no possibility of a "money panic" and that there are already unmistakable signs of an upward turn in business. Mr. Chaplin said:

"I have been in the banking business many years. I have seen a number of these depressions—in 1907 and 1908, when it was not only an industrial depression but a money panic as well.

"And cotton—do you remember 'Buy a Bale'? Do you remember the gold pool when all the gold seemed to have left this old United States; do you remember that it was predicted Europe would dump our securities on us, and they did, yet we absorbed them and we have become a creditor and not a debtor nation, and the financial center of the world.

"We cannot have a money panic, for the Federal Reserve is a bulwark of strength. We have our weak spots, brought about by two much inflation, but they pass; they are even now passing, and the underlying conditions are sound.

Upturn Expected In Car Parts Trade

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—While activity in the automotive parts industry slowed up in a seasonal manner in December, some reports indicate that a moderate upward trend in manufacturing operations should be noticed in January, the Motor and Equipment Association reports. Lowered schedules also were reported by manufacturers of parts and accessories for original equipment and for the replacement trade in November.

PRODUCE SECURITIES EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—Trading was quiet yesterday on the Produce Exchange securities market. Bank issues were the most active, with Chase leading and hardening 8 points. In the unlisted section National Liberty sold up 1. Southern States Corporation capital stock was admitted to dealing and sold at 2. Public Utility Holding was next prominent issue, sold up. Amer. [illegible] Corporation was off 3, and Standard [illegible]. Total sales stocks, 8,475 shares.

STEEL PLANT SCHEDULES ADVANCE

Advanced Prices on Bars, Shapes, Plates Likely To Hold Next Quarter

By B. E. V. LUTY.

The new year opens with increasing steel mill operations and with an actual advance in market prices of bars, shapes and plates. Steel production will continue increasing and the chances seem to be that steel prices will hold, with prospects of attempt to advance prices of some products for second quarter delivery.

The turn of the year regularly marks the beginning of the improvement in steel tonnage. In the last nine years there has been no exception to this rule. January steel production being above December and the March quarter above the December quarter, and prices in January have more often been above December than below, an impressive point by reason of the fact that the general trend of steel prices since April, 1923, has been downward.

WEEK'S OUTPUT UP

Steel production in the week now ending has been much heavier than last week. This in itself would be of no significance because Christmas is a steel mill holiday and New Year's Day is not, but it is important that various mills have operated better this week than they expected. This was due to there being a fair volume of shipping orders booked in December for January shipment, more than had been counted on.

Steel makers have been unusually conservative in making predictions of improvement in their business, being disposed to set improvement in buying for February, and even for the latter part of the month. There are very good reasons for believing they have been unduly conservative, one of these reasons being the statistical precedent just cited. It is safe to assert that steel makers in general are unacquainted with this precedent. They are notoriously unfamiliar with the statistics of their industry. Another reason for believing that the steel business is already engaged in improving is the fact that during the past four or six weeks expressions in the steel trade have been steadily, though slowly, growing more sanguine.

SHIPPING ORDERS GAIN

A third reason is that in a number of cases there has been an increase in the receipt of actual shipping orders, apart from contracting for the quarter, which has been of fair volume. The most impressive case is that of the pipe and tube mills, which had materially heavier bookings of current orders in December than in November. As this is quite contrary to seasonal precedent, December being usually a particularly dull month, the showing is particularly encouraging. There was no more than a slight increase in actual shipments in December, so that the pipe and tube mills have a larger order book than 30 days ago.

The December increase was made without any special or large orders, bookings merely representing ordinary day to day business. There was no line pipe of any consequence, but in the last few weeks a large aggregate of tonnage has been figured on while there are some important and apparently live pipe line projects against which prices have not yet been asked. Sometimes an inquiry for prices on line pipe is followed promptly by placing of orders, while in other cases a collection of prices is asked on different sizes or descriptions of pipe, the engineers desiring to make choice between alternative propositions, and then there may be delay. It would not be surprising should a large amount of line pipe business be placed before the end of this month, although really heavy deliveries might not be required for a while. Last year no line pipe buying of any consequence occurred until the latter part of March, and then there was a rush, filling producers to capacity and perhaps making some buyers take later deliveries than they wanted.

PREPARE MODEL BUILDING LAW

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Omission of a mandatory clause in the model law for the prequalification of prospective bidders on public construction work appeared likely in view of recommendations to be made at the twelfth annual convention of its sponsor, the Associated General Contractors of America. The model bill is being prepared for introduction in state legislatures throughout the country to assure competent and experienced contractors on public work.

As a practical proposition with prequalification in its infancy, it does not seem wise nor desirable to advocate a mandatory clause, according to Harry J. Kirk of the national staff of the association and secretary of the joint committee on prequalification of the American Association of State Highway Officials and the Associated General Contractors, in an analysis of the subject just made public and which is to be submitted to the convention, January 26 to 30, at San Francisco.

The analysis also sets forth that although prequalification of bidders should be made to apply as a matter of principle to all kinds of public works construction open to competitive bid, efforts to secure initial prequalification legislation probably should confine its application to a limited field only.

RETAIL BUYING IN SMALL VOLUME

Department Stores Hold Sales to Clear Out Holiday Merchandise

There is comparatively little activity in the general business situation this week, with retail buying in small volume, and jobbers doing very little except in a few lines where buying is for filling-in purposes, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review.

Department stores are holding sales for the purpose of clearing out holiday merchandise in preparation for inventory. It seems to be the general impression of merchants that inventories will show stocks of merchandise considerably lower than they were a year ago, and a gradual pickup in buying is anticipated early in the new year.

COLLECTIONS SLOW

Manufacturers of electrical equipment are operating at a moderate rate, with demand quiet. There has been reduction in the production of crude oil and demand for refined products has fallen off to some extent. Production of bituminous coal continued at a rate of about 20 per cent lower than a year ago and no improvement in demand is apparent.

There has been practically no improvement in collections which continue to average slow, although a few merchants have shown slightly more promptness in paying their bills.

STATE'S CROP YEAR POOR

A greater total acreage in 1930 compared with 1929, lower yields and lower production except for winter grains and oats, larger crops of that except peaches, and lower prices for all crops except lame hay and probably tobacco, resulting in a value for the major field and fruit crops almost 10 per cent less than last year, summarizes the 1930 crop season in Pennsylvania, according to the revised estimates, issued today by the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service, Harrisburg. The estimated value of all crops in the state for the 1930 season of $218,324,000, though about $22,000,000 less than last year, compares favorably with a total value of $219,656,000 in 1928. For three years in succession the farmers in this state have suffered from adverse weather conditions, and, in addition to the short cash crops this year, as a result of the unprecedented drought, they experienced slow markets and low prices.

Milk production per cow December 1 reflected a continuation of the increase which began in November, but is still slightly below production a year ago. Egg production per hen the first of this month was 14 per cent higher than last month and 12 per cent above production on December 1, 1929. Prices received by Pennsylvania farmers for all meat animals except sheep were lower November 15 than a month previous. Egg prices advanced three cents, but were still nine cents below the corresponding 1929 price. For the third month butterfat prices have remained the same. Farm labor continues plentiful, the supply being practically unlimited in some parts of the state, but farmers are doing no more hiring than is absolutely necessary, although some laborers are willing to work for their board.

OFFICIAL HITS TAX METHODS

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa. —Expressing [illegible] "outrageous" [illegible] George W. Mosh, chairman of the board of commissioners of Fayette County, condemned the present system of tax assessment while sitting as Court Hall with Commissioners E. H. McClung and John S. Lauffer, at a session of appeals of property owners from assessments in this city. Hoh declared:

"The inequality of the tax burden is an outrage to property owners. Fayette County properly is assessed anywhere from 10 to 150 per cent of its market value. Similar conditions exist elsewhere. In Westmoreland County, the assessments range from 10 to 133 per cent."

Commissioner Hoh said the "market value" was the basis for assessment. However, he said there are not 10 persons in Fayette County qualified to make such assessments. Through market prices as a basis, Hoh believes tax levies could be lowered to 3 or 4 mills, without reducing the revenue.

ERSKINE VIEWS TRADE NEEDS

NEW YORK, Jan. 3. (AP.)—A. R. Erskine, president of the Studebaker Corporation, believes that the country needs leadership which will establish confidence in existing prices.

In a telegram to S. A. Miller, general manager of the 1931 New York auto show, Erskine, who also is a member of the Show Committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, said that whenever consumers and investors have convincing evidence that prices have reached bottom, increased buying will begin and the machinery of production, distribution and employment will function in a more normal manner.

"Practically all producers, distributors, consumers and investors have been demoralized from continuous liquidation of property at sacrifice prices," the telegram said, "and this debilitating progress must cease before prosperity can return."

STEEL OFFICIAL OPTIMISTIC

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Jan. 3.—A favorable report was made during the week by Frank Detwiler, general manager of the Brackenridge plant of the Allegheny Steel Company. He said:

"Operation conditions are expected to be better than during the past year although no boom is anticipated."

The company plans to build a 300-yard [illegible] dock near Main Lock Lane, Tarentum, to handle iron and steel. Its open hearth furnace is being enlarged and $800,000 for improvements and plant additions was spent in the past year.

RECOVERY SEEN AS CERTAIN BY BANKER

Exact Date Not Assured, Fleischhaker Says in Optimistic Interview

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—New York, sensitive to the short-term swings of the stock market, has been bluer than the rest of the country. From the zestful Pacific Coast comes a message of reasoned confidence from Herbert Fleischhaker, president of the Anglo and London Paris National Bank of San Francisco, and a prime mover in business affairs in his region.

Mr. Fleischhaker

Mr. Fleischhaker emphasized that the combined intelligence of the world is now focussed on the process of economic recovery.

RECOVERY CERTAIN

He said:

"Long-term recovery is, in my opinion, certain, although the exact date is not. My confidence in this is based upon the fundamentals of human nature and economics. It is true that much of our machinery for progressively satisfying our wants is out of adjustment. Some of it must be repaired, some scrapped, and, as history teaches us, some entirely new units may have to be added. The accumulated intelligence of the world is at the job now and has been at it for some time.

"The strained and faulty parts of the world's economic machinery, such as maladjusted international monetary systems, lack of balance in production and distribution, governmental activities far afield from the function of government, are problems which have arisen in varied forms throughout the history of civilization—but never before in history has man been so equipped with accumulated knowledge and wealth to solve them."

SIGNS OF UPSWING

Asked how we can know when the turn upward has come, Mr. Fleischhaker indicated:

"I should say, first, the statistics of matured plans—building contracts, unfilled steel tonnage, etc.; second, statistics of accomplishment, such as employment, production, car loadings, retail sales, bank debits, etc.—All to be anticipated by growing stability in commodity and securities markets, based on a sound conception of values."

The western banker was next asked what the government can do further, said:

"The part of governmental action is clear. First, by repeal, amendment and initiators' action to remove the restrictions to the industrial efficiency that now exists to handicap us in national competition and lowered costs; second, to avoid the extravagances that lead to a national competitive handicap of high taxes."

As to consumers, Mr. Fleischhaker added:

The ultimate consumer's wants, based on bare necessities, are, in a modern sense, few, compared to his normal total. Give him a job and confidence in its continuance and he will not hesitate to buy."

QUIET TRADING ON LOCAL MARKET

Lone Star and Pittsburgh Plate Glass Hold Gains Made in Previous Session

Quiet week-end trading, with prices holding practically unchanged, marked the short session on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. Leading fuel and industrial issues maintained the gains scored in yesterday's rally, but volume of business fell off noticeably.

Lone Star Gas was handled at 74¼ at the start, unchanged from the previous close and three points above the figure at which it closed a week ago. Western Public Service was steady, but very quiet. Other fuels were quoted unchanged.

In the industrial section Pittsburgh Forgings made a slight gain at the opening, but others in the heavy manufacturing section were unchanged. Pittsburgh Plate Glass held around the 36 level, to which it advanced in yesterday's flurry. Blaw Knox was steady at 24.

FILM REVIEWS, HOLLYWOOD AND NEW YORK CHRONICLES

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

Harold Stech, the Charleroi stock salesman, spends his spare time attempting to make the country riddle-conscious. For your next Hallowe'en party (1931), he insists that you try this on your best friends.

A farmer left his estate of 17 cows to his three sons. One had to get one-half, John one-third, to Pete, and one-ninth to Henry. We aren't concerned with the rest because it spoils the riddle.

William Pfarr

Obviously, 17 cows could not be divided into such shares, so Uncle George donated an eighteenth cow. Of the 18 cows, John took one-half, or nine. Pete received one-third, or six, and Henry drew down one-ninth, or two.

The first one cow unaccounted for, so those three boys gave the unaccounted cow back to uncle. This riddle is equally ineffective if you substitute marbles for cows.

We have been lamenting the ways of the younger generation for many years, but we didn't know what we were talking about. We saw the younger generation in action the other day—a half dozen of them, and very young. They somersaulted, they played horse, they played cowboy and Indian, shooting each other dead in turn, and they made a lot of noise. This is just as it was in what we quaintly call the good old days. And as long as the children of this glorious land continue to somersault and play cowboy and Indian and shoot each other just so long, friends, will the future of the country be safe, let the blue chips fall where they may. Thank you.

The Town 40 years ago: Phil Weis, the orchestra leader, was playing Sullivan's "Iolanthe" as the overture at the Bijou . . . The Allegheny Hat House in Federal street advertised, "Where did you get that hat?" . . . The best joke of the day was. The wings of the house were surprised when the chimney-flue . . . Klein's Silver Age was $1.50 a quart . . . The Heinz Company, which apparently had not yet reached a state of 57 varieties, was boasting of having "pulled down another plum"—the medal at the Paris Exposition . . . Himmelrich's, in Market street, was offering ladies' button boots with diamond tips at $2.50 . . . Maggie Mitchell was in town for Christmas week playing "Ray" at the Bijou and preceding none other than Mr. John L. Sullivan, "who will give a scientific exhibition of the manly art" . . .

What's more the trouble with the tribe known as columnists is that they're not sincere. Let one of them find himself in dire need of a paragraph to conclude a column, and what does he do? He plays 'possum. He'll clip a paragraph from a Seattle paper, or he'll write himself a letter and sign it "DISGRUNTLED READER," or he'll reprint an old poem, "by request."

Against these practices we rebel. We are all for frankness. Why not a blunt confession with some such explanation as this: "I haven't a thing to write in these last few inches, so I am printing a picture of my favorite author."

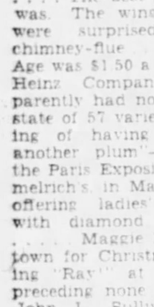
It is superfluous to add that the favorite author of every columnist you've ever met is the gentleman himself.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 3.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

The Alabama Boll-Weevils destroyed the Washington Apple Knockers at Pasadena. Washington had all red suits, shoes, pants, helmets and all. They looked like 11 bottles of strawberry pop. The score sounded like the Democratic convention at Madison Square Garden in '24, "Alabama votes 24 for Underwood."



Will Rogers

Thursday, Alabama makes 24 for Coach Wallace Wade. Here is the best one that happened at the rose festival. A policeman arrested some little boys for plucking roses from the yard at the house Einstein, the great scientist, is stopping at. The kids then showed the policeman that the roses were not growing. They were tied on all sorts of bushes with strings. That's one of California's theories that Einstein doesn't understand.

Yours, WILL.

Carol Lombard Replaces Jean Arthur in Powell Film

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Publishers Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 3.

A last-minute switch puts Carol Lombard opposite William Powell in "Cavalier of the Streets."

Up until yesterday, Jean Arthur was to have had the role, and Wynne Gibson the second feminine lead. Miss Gibson, a recent importation from the stage, remains in the cast.

You may recall that the blonde Carol also was in Powell's last picture, "Ladies' Man." That time Kay Francis won the hero in the climax, while Carol got the figure eight.

William Powell.

SOLUTION AT LAST

McCarey named one.

After a moment's thought, McCarey suggested a well known heavy.

"No," opposed the film executive, "he's been seen so often that everybody will know he can't win the girl."

"I see," McCarey observed, "what you want is big names and new faces."

LIKE SIGNS

Next Monday, Gloria Swanson starts her long expected picture under the sponsorship of De Sylva, Brown and Henderson.

Newly added as juvenile lead will be Arthur Lake, an agreeable young comedian, who got an unfortunate break in premature stardom at R-K-O.

Gloria Swanson

"Obey that impulse" is the name of the Swanson film, and despite the auspices, it will not have a single song or so the story goes at present.

Gloria and Ben Lyon are cast as two young people whose lack of inhibitions enables them to do all the ridiculous things that the rest of us are afraid to try. Obviously the keynote of the picture is comedy, but Director Leo McCarey promises drama too. Which is just as well, for Gloria's fans were slightly bewildered by her farce, "What a Widow."

LATEST GOSSIP

A story lies behind the fact that Herman Mankiewicz's name has been taken off the credit sheet of Paramount's "The Royal Family." It seems that Mankiewicz, who did the screen play and who supervised the picture, finally became so angry at Ina Claire that he wired his resignation to Paramount. The company, however, refused to accept it. Whereupon Mankiewicz indignantly replied that they, at least, could take his name off the picture. This was done. . . . Maurice Chevalier, who has been away from Hollywood too long, arrives in New York January 15. In the meanwhile, he will do a series of concerts in London.

A WHACK IN FACE AND HERO IN STANLEY TURNS BANDIT

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Richard Barthelmess plays a sort of Robin Hood in the Stanley. His picture is titled The Lash, and it is all about a cultured don who turns bandit. The setting is early California.

Under close scrutiny, it is just a big dose of western melodrama dressed up with fiestas and moonlight.

One episode has Barthelmess getting a whack across the face with a strap. And it is quite a whack. It not only furnishes the title, but it turns Mr. Barthelmess into an outlaw.

Most of the Americans depicted in this movie are a bad lot. They chase people out of their homes and do a lot of other cheating in the name of government.

There is a Fourth of July speech also. But there isn't any spirit of 1776.

WRECK THE TOWN

Horses gallop all over the place to a musical accompaniment that is noisy enough to be an operatic overture. And there is a rip-snorting cattle stampede. Three thousand of Hollywood's best cows just about wreck a made-to-order town.

The Barthelmess bandit gang has a big time. It goes riding into a frame-shantied Los Angeles in two big stage coaches. It takes the key to the city and drinks a lot of liquor.

THE NEW LOWRY SHOW

"Keep Smilin'" is Ed Lowry's stage show. It is lengthy, but it has some good features. Mr. Lowry himself does nicely with a Maurice Chevalier impersonation. A picket fence in the scenic setting turns out to be a musical instrument. Kaye and Savre do some dancing and introduce a fuzzy little dog that is as clever as they. A girl in a black dress sings "Real Estate Papa," which is anything but new. A clown makes novelty music and a couple other comedians do a tumbling act.

A large crowd was on hand yesterday and some of it had a time of it in getting seated. It was a matter of watchful waiting and quick scurrying.

Near East Worker, 70, Dies in Cairo

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—(AP.)—News of the death in Cairo, Egypt, of Emma B. Cushman, of New York, who devoted 30 years of her life to humanitarian service in the Near East, has been received by the Near East Foundation. She died of black water fever on New Years Eve while visiting 2,500 orphan boys and girls whom she had trained. Miss Cushman was 70 years old.

The Greek government decorated her with the Gold Cross of the Saviour "In recognition of her leadership and training of women in the Near East."

Freed of Blame In Girl's Death

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 3.—Francis Moore, Homer City youth, was exonerated of blame by a coroner's jury in the death of Miss Helen Harris, 21, Hood College student, of Homer City, killed in an auto accident near Blairsville, December 27.

Miss Harris was killed when the auto containing her, two other girls and three youths, and driven by Moore returning from a dance in Greensburg, skidded on the icy highway on McCurdys Hill, pinning her beneath.

Masontown Bridge Dispute Settled

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Jan. 3.—A dispute of more than one year's standing which resulted in keeping tolls from the Greene-Fayette Intercounty Bridge at Masontown in different banks has been settled by an agreement to divide the tolls monthly. During 1930 a total of $44,249.19 was collected at the bridge, of which 58 per cent, $25,664.50, will be received by Fayette County and $18,584.64, or 42 per cent, by Greene County.

DRAMA AND MAGIC IN COMING BILLS

Josephine Victor Reid, an actress known as Josephine Victor, is the author of next week's attraction in the Nixon. It is called "With the Tide," and is a story of a girl cast amid some strange characters on a barge that moves with the tide. It has Lillian Foster in the principal role. The play is new.

An event of next week theatricals will be the presentation for the first time on any stage of "Hell Is Paved," a new play by Charles Brownell and Mann Page, in the Pitt. Eugene O'Brien, stage and screen player, has been engaged for the leading role.

Thurston, wizard of magic, who comes to the Shubert-Alvin next week, announces new illusions and sleight of hand tricks. With him is his daughter, Jane, the only woman magician in the world.

Tangara is the feminine principal of "Girls From the Follies," which opens in the Academy Sunday, with a midnight show.

TAX RECEIPTS OFF 71 MILLION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—(INS.)—Final figures for 1930 income and corporation taxes issued today by the Treasury showed a total tax collection of $2,332,976,000, a reduction of $71,000,000 from 1929.

Collections during December, heavier than anticipated, amounted to $496,821,200, a decrease of $20,000,000 from the same month of 1929.

For the first half of the 1931 fiscal year, ending December 31, total receipts were $1,854,207,800, a reduction of $223,000,000 from the same period of the 1930 fiscal year.

Ordinary expenditures were $1,706,788,000 for the half year, an increase of $105,000,000.

Truism

If I could have you now I know that I
Would be a wise and strangely altered lad;
And you would read submission in my eye,
And search in vain for flighty ways I had;
For I have learned since we have broken off
The value of fervent constancy;
The virtues that I begged of you to doff
Now symbolize the perfect maid to me.

But yet if I returned to you tonight,
And bowed my head and made a sorry plea,
Imploring you to ease my wretched plight—
I think you would be rather bored with me.

There's little glamour to me as I am—
You loved me when I did not give a damn!
—Kid Kazanova.

Gag

Zelma O'Neal was appearing at the Eighty-sixth Street Theater in New York several weeks ago, a theater to hear most actors tell it which harbors the world's largest Dead Pan audience. Zelma was unhappy over their unappreciative response.

She encountered Fred Allen a few eves later and told Fred how tough she found that audience.

"I know," replied Allen. "It was up there that they got the idea for 'All Quiet'."

Wiseys

Take it from La Guinan, times were so difficult on Broadway, the wives used last year's husbands.

She asks this pillar: incidentally, to say for her that she wishes 1931 will be an aspirin for last year's headache.

The Morning Mail

"Dear Winchell," affectionately writes I. Elinson, "it is too bad that all those cops (in the Vice Probe) didn't stay in their speakeasies instead of going out to break the law.

"The depositors are calling it The Bunk of U. S.

"What a break if the Noise Abatement Commission's ruling on horns would affect the muggs who are constantly blowing their own!"

In Case You Didn't Know

Benny Holzman epigrams that the angel of the show is a fellow who likes the girl no matter how poor the show is.

Nonsense

Alice Loughlin goes gay with the word "sensual" in a sentence like this: "Sensual insist. I'll have another drinkee." . . . I Schwartz toys with "Physician" in this manner: "Well, well, well. Physician my old pal, Joe!"

Nifty

Take it from Niver W. Beaman, for every bon mot purled on Broadway there are dozens that are purloined.

By Way of Report

It is the same Broadway that runs through Hastings-on-Hudson, but in Westchester County Broadway plays second violin to Warburton avenue. In Hastings THE place on Warburton avenue is Ben Kalender's stationery emporium.

There Florenz Ziegfeld might be buying 16 magazines for Billie Burke and miscellanies for Patricia, his growing dotter.

Dr. Dadirrian, of Kumyss fame, is probably buying a hundred dollars' worth of toys for young folks.

Incidentally, all Hastings knows it when Billie Burke gets home. Mr. Ziegfeld has a fleet of Rolls-Royces meet her at the Pennsylvania Station and drive up to the handsome shack on the Hudson.

When they're home, which isn't often, a fleet of cars takes the help to church on the Sabbath. Everything in the grand manner.

Ben Kalender thus is the Boswell to a lot of near-great men. He knows what they smoke, read, write, photograph; he knows their favorite sports, hobbies, intellectual interests; he's even a circulating library, time table, political expert and philosopher. He's informed on estate deals, vacation plans and the weather.

In fewer words, there are no hick towns.

DRESSLER AND MORAN HAVE BEST COMEDY OF MANY MOONS

By GEORGE SEIBEL

THE FIRST WEEK of the new year saw a new hero of the screen make his debut at the Penn Theater yesterday. It was Senator Norris of Nebraska. When he delivered an address during the newsreel the audience greeted his words with a volley of applause as if he were a presidential candidate. If this goes on, politicians may have to go to the talkies to find out what people are thinking.

Mr. Seibel

It was an overflowing house for Marie Dressler and Polly Moran have a new comedy, and it's a mirthquake. It is called "Reducing," but if to laugh is to grow fat it will have the opposite effect. One incipiently adipose critic must have gained two pounds in less than two hours.

REASON FOR LAUGHS

So many alleged comedies are only funny because people have paid to laugh and think it's their duty, but there's a reason for the laughs in "Reducing." Marie Dressler is the best comedienne on the Hollywood lots. And Polly Moran is a worthy runner-up. And both are more than clowns; they can act.

Add to this that they have a scenario full of quarrels, accidents, surprises and amusing lines and who can help laughing.

See Marie Dressler climb into an upper berth, see Polly Moran take a mud bath in her beauty parlor, and you'll get your money's worth, and your mouth will water at the roast turkey and you'll fall in love with Anita Page.

BUCK AND BUBBLES

Pesetzki with his orchestra, Leibert at the organ, Ted Claire as official host, and the latest assortment of Chester Hale Girls in a glittering revue are the framework of the funniest picture shown in many moons. Dressler and Moran would make the Sphinx grin with glee.

Two Fume Victims Revived by Police

Police from the East End Station revived Sweeney Brown, 27, and his wife, Lulu, who were overcome by carbon monoxide fumes in their home at 14 Carver street, yesterday. Inhalators were employed in the rescue.

MISS TALMADGE DOES A MOVIE DU BARRY IN THE ALDINE

By HILDRED FILLMORE.

"Du Barry, Woman of Passion," is the new picture in the Aldine. In reality it is Norma Talmadge consuming endless film footage in an atmosphere of elaborate, but insincere splendor, which the movies so often attach to depiction of royalty.

Miss Talmadge's Du Barry is rather artificial. She doesn't arouse much sympathy. She is just a disillusioned woman, who laments the fact that she's always doing things she doesn't want to do. Certainly a lady who is able to twist a king around on her finger should have more will power.

Anyway, in the best movie manner, the madame spends the royal bankroll, enjoys the luxury of a palace boudoir and has an undying love for a common soldier, Royal France is at her feet and the mob is at the palace gate. And, of course, at the climax this mob breaks through and it is goodby Madame Du Barry.

William Farnum stages a comeback amid all the pomp befitting a monarch. In dress he is very much a king. In manner he is more like a big butter and egg man. But he still is ardent in his lovemaking, is this old hero of the long-ago silent days.

Conrad Nagel is the soldier-sweetheart. He dodges in and out of the action, looking very heroic in his soldier uniform and looking very down-and-out when he joins the rabble in its "down with the king."

Basket Break for Pitt.
Great Record of 1930.
$200,000,000 Expended.
Cost Equals Receipts.
Bat's Part in Slugging.
Tilden's Step Timely.

PANTHERS' FORWARD PROBLEM SOLVED

WHEN THE CURRENT basketball season opened, Coach Carlson, of the Pitt Panthers, was all up in the air over his forward problem. He had shifted Willie (Doc) Kowallis from a guard to a forward position, and was fairly well convinced that this would assure him at least one good man. At the other forward berth he couldn't make up his mind between Milt Cohen and Timmy Lawry, and was alternating those players in the early games. Then, in the Creighton game at Omaha, it appeared that any hopes he might have entertained of a good holiday record had been ruined by an injury to Kowallis.

Timmy Lawry

But on the contrary, this turned out to have been a helpful break, for Carlson tossed Cohen into Kowallis' berth and allowed Lawry to play the other forward position, with the result that both of these boys have made good. At least, Pitt has lost only one game since then, that to Indiana last Thursday night. Lawry, in particular, has been a standout. He was the leading scorer in the last two contests and made a perfect foul-throwing record with nine out of nine. It looks as if Pitt has found another star in the North Side boy, if he may be expected to keep up the brilliant work he has done in recent engagements.

IN ADDITION, Dr. Carlson has discovered that another of his reserves possesses varsity ability, for when Cohen had a bad night Carlson put Steve Kowallis into action and this lad, also, came through. As a result of these developments, instead of having only a single dependable forward and two fair ones, the Braddock physician now can count on four men who are able to go in and play 40 minutes of hard basketball.

The strain of the Dartmouth, Syracuse and Purdue games is thought to have caused the Panthers' loss of edge against Indiana Thursday night, and after a rest the local passers are expected to be back in form for the next contest, which is scheduled for one week from tonight against New York U. in New York. Three more games at home with Fordham, West Virginia and Carnegie Tech will follow that event. The Carlsons have won six out of nine tangles to date, having defeated Ohio State, Marquette, Nebraska, Dartmouth, Syracuse and Purdue, and lost to Western Reserve, Creighton and Indiana.

John A. Heydler

JOHN A. HEYDLER'S announcement that the National League clubs played to 5,500,000 fans during the last baseball season, or an average of about 9,000 to a game, has been followed by reports from other sources which show there was no sign of depression in American sport activity or patronage during 1930.

It has been estimated that with the intake added to the cost of operation, the sum expended on sports in this country during the year approximated $200,000,000. Half of that went for equipment, according to figures given to George Daley by Ed Thorp, the football official, who is connected with a big sporting goods house.

THORP SAID THAT $100,000,000 would no more than pay the bill for equipment in football, baseball, golf, tennis, yachting and other activities, not including automobiling. Football alone cost $7,000,000 in equipping the players, who numbered 150,000. The average cost of outfitting a player ranges from $100 at the leading colleges down to $60. $40 and $20 in the smaller colleges, prep schools and on the sandlots. A nation-wide census showed 1,897,241 active golfers. About 2,000,000 played baseball, 1,500,000 took part in tennis and 3,000,000 participated in basketball. Even with the average expenditure in this total of close to 8,500,000 is placed as low as $5 the total reaches $42,000,000.

TO THAT MUST be added the cost of yachting, motorboating, fishing, hunting and camping equipment, which causes the total expense to soar to the staggering total of nine figures. The receipts were equally high. Add the American League's 4,500,000 to the National League's 5,500,000, and the total major league baseball attendance was 10,000,000, representing about $13,000,000 for the regular season.

The World Series drew 211,619 attendance and $953,772 receipts. Even such a side attraction as the Chicago city series attracted 162,918 fans, paying $187,674. And that's saying nothing about the minor leagues. On the various tracks of the country, 11,479 horse races were run, and $13,674,330 was distributed in purses.

AS FOR FOOTBALL, Notre Dame alone played to 500,000 persons in 10 games, with receipts totaling $1,500,000, and Yale, Harvard, Pennsylvania and others drew gates which aggregated 400,000. Pittsburgh set a new record for single game with 74,233.

Boxing fell off in receipts, not from lack of interest, but from lack of color and good attractions, though at that there was a top gate of 70,000 spectators and $750,000 in intake for the Schmeling-Sharkey disappointment. Even international polo drew 135,000 persons and $1,000,000 in three matches. On the whole the year's figures testify to the robust health of sports.

Hack Wilson

HACK WILSON, home run champion of 1930, shares the opinion expressed by a major league official, that a change in the bat, as well as in the ball, has had much to do with the increased slugging in baseball. Wilson says he is convinced that the physical structure of the modern bat has been a factor. He recalls that when he broke into the big show with the Giants in the fall of 1923 all the sluggers were using bats with thick handles, but says that now the grips are much thinner, leaving the wrist more flexible and the muscles of the forearm less tense, so that it is possible, in his opinion, to drive the ball a greater distance.

NOT ALL OF the tales related by the football coaches during their recent annual story-telling competition for the brown derby had to do with incidents on the field of play. Bo McMillin, former coach at Geneva, told several that had only a side connection, one of them about a coach who had two little sons. These lads knew all there was to know about football and its phraseology.

It came to pass that the boys, with their parents, went to visit their rich paternal grandfather. The old gentleman had never even set eyes on a football. One of the youngsters piped up: "Grandpa, what position did you play on your college team?" "Play?" echoed grandpa. "Sure I never played football. I don't know anything about that game." "Oh, yes you do, grandpa," returned the little fellow. "I heard mother say that when you kicked off we were going to get a new car."

ONE OF THE qualities that made Bill Tilden in his heyday a world beater in tennis was perfect timing, and in the opinion of many he never did a better job of that than in retiring from the amateur ranks at this stage to follow Bobby Jones into the movies.

LOCALS OBTAIN NEW STAR FOR DETROIT FRAY

BY CARL W. SHATTO.

Farrand Gillie

Historians vouch for the fact that Patrick was very fiery and convincing when he said "millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute."

The Pittsburgh ice prexy's version of the Henry utterance is "millions for defense and a like amount for forwards," and if his words lack fire, his actions are very convincing.

The Jackets' 3-1 defeat at the hands of the league-leading Buffalo Bisons here Thursday prompted Schooley to indulge in a new hockey talent buying venture late yesterday, and as a result of the departure of the Schooley coin, Eddie Rodden will be in the local lineup when the Jackets meet the Detroit Olympics at Duquesne Garden at 8:30 tonight.

WELL KNOWN HERE

Eddie, who can perform at either center or right wing, was purchased from the New York Rangers, but he is well known to local hockey fandom. He first came here as a member of the Eveleth Club, which disputed Pittsburgh's right to a national amateur championship, and later he appeared at the Garden with the Chicago and Boston National League teams.

Last season the Rangers farmed Rodden to London, and he showed so much class with the International Leaguers that he was recalled to the New York fold. As a member of the Tecumsehs he garnered 43 points to finish third in the individual scoring race, and turned in 30 assists, just twice as many as his nearest rival for the "most assists" laurels. Carson, of Windsor, was the 1929-30 individual scoring champ, with 45 points, and Sorrel, also of London, was second with one point more than Rodden was able to garner.

EFFECTIVE CHECKER

Ever since he has been in pro hockey Eddie has been renowned for his highly effective poke and back checking, and Schooley is confident that his new star will strengthen the defense as well as the offense of the local machine.

Rodden's acquisition boosts the local roster to 17 puckmen. Two present Jackets will be sent to Schooley's Niagara Falls farm tonight, for all International League squads must be trimmed to 15 men before tomorrow morning.

Although Detroit ranks with the strong teams of the loop the Jackets anticipate starting a new winning streak tonight. They held the Olympics to a single goal in chalking up two triumphs over the invaders in their only previous meeting. Furthermore, the locals are the only club that the Detroiters have not been able to down.

GILLIE DETROIT ACE

Against the Jackets the Olympics' attack has appeared weak, but in Farrand Gillie, lanky wing, they have one of the best goal-getters in the circuit, and other clubs have known 'em as a high-scoring machine.

Detroit is just one notch ahead

Believe It Or Not By RIPLEY

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Robert L. Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: JUMBO, THE LITTLE MULE—During his lifetime, Jumbo became a famous "character" in the Northern Arizona country, doing service on the rugged and torturous trails across Grand Canyon and the Painted Desert. Although the animal was comparatively small in stature, he was noted for his ability to carry heavy loads of water and supplies across the long, dry stretches of country. He also was noted for his almost human intelligence, sometimes making these trips alone. On one trip he carried a heavy traveler a distance of 90 miles across the Painted Desert in 11 hours.

The Dukes are springing a new one on the boys tonight. Leave it to John Holohan to pop up with the unexpected and the unique. Now he's scheduled a brand new college for a basketball opponent, and this evening will present St. Mary's College of Orchard Lake, Michigan, against the Dukes on the Bluff court.

Chick Davies

St. Mary's, so I've been given to understand, is the only Polish Catholic seminary in the country. After glancing over the players' names, I am convinced that it is not Irish.

For all the Dukes' opponent is unknown hereabouts, the team rates highly in Michigan circles. It boasts a fine record as a defensive club, and the lineup that will start against the locals this evening has played together for two years. Coach Malinowski, who hails from Canonsburg, is a Duquesne graduate of the class of '16.

DUKE LINEUP SET

Coach Davies, who was well satisfied with the victory of his Dukes over Lehigh in the inaugural Thursday night, will start Abele and Benedict at the forwards; McGeever at center and Capt. Brud Stephens and Snaps Parry at the guards tonight.

For St. Mary's Selczkowski and Malinowski will be at the forwards, Neuman at center and Capt. Grulkowski and Cucia at the guards. Grulkowski, rated a fine defensive player, may also be shifted to center.

Cal Bolster and Buck Snyder will handle the ball game as officials and it has been suggested that due to his linguistic abilities, Mr. Bolster announce the lineup to the crowd prior to the start of hostilities, if any.

The Tipoff

The Chi Club, of New Castle, is putting on a testimonial banquet tonight for Frank Carideo at the Castleton Hotel. Buddy Overend, Carnegie Tech's graduate manager of athletics, is going to be the toastmaster. Ho, ho; what a party that one will be. Did you ever hear the great Overend toastmastering?

By the way, I'll tip you off to the correct (patent applied for) pronunciation of Carideo's name. It is not pronounced Ca-RI-deo. Nope, that is wrong. Carideo himself and his pappy and mammy pronounce it thisaway:—Car-i-DAY-o. And they ought to know.

Prior to the start of the Pitt-Indiana contest on Thursday night Frank Lane, the popular and very efficient Cincinnati referee, who is somewhat of a joker in his own right, cracked to Jim Carlson: "Say, doc, be sure to tell me if I miss any tonight, won't you?"

Cornell requested that Lane referee all of the Ithacans' games in the Midwest this year. Lane is one of the best in the country. You seldom hear a rap against him.

Buzz Hogan's Carnegie Techers will seek to succeed where Pitt failed and defeat Western Reserve in Cleveland tonight. Pitt didn't fail to beat Reserve in Cleveland, but took one on the lug from the Red Cats head at home.

West Virginia Wesleyan has shifted big Cliff Battles, captain of the basketball team, from a forward to a running guard position, where it is hoped he will be of greater value. Battles is almost as brilliant a court star as he is a gridder, which is pippish brilliant.

Merger of Chicago Sports Clubs Fails

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—(AP.)—Merger of the Chicago Athletic Association and the Chicago Yacht Club is a dead issue, officials of the C. A. A. said today.

A special meeting called for next Tuesday to vote on the project has been canceled by directors of the Athletic club. Its nominating committee, composed of 12 former presidents, has prepared a new slate of officers, called the "harmony ticket," for the January 27 election. They are said to be solidly against the proposed merger.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Should Wife of a Gadding Hubby Step Out, Too?

I wonder if you'll agree with Lucy—or hand her a Swift Kick. Being a Careful Gal myself, I'm not siding with her . . . or against her. I'm leaving the riot to you.

Ella Hawkins started it, with her panic over her husband. No, he hadn't been mean to her. But he just didn't seem to know that she was on earth any more. For eight years she had been a Good Wife—happy, contented, busy with her children and her home. Then one day, she waked up to realize that she was sitting at home alone evening after evening . . . . while Dad "went out to see a client."

Does Not Agree

"What'll I do, Sally," she implored. "How'll I win him back?"

"How'll you do it?" said we. "By being sparkle n' spunk n' sunshine to him once more!"

And there's where Lucy comes in. Listen while she broadcasts her program. And then tell us whether you think it's the wheat or the bunk.

"Dear Sally: I don't agree with you about the way to handle the husband of Ella Hawkins—the man who steps out at night. Part of it is okay. It would be quite all right for the lady to get some 'glad rags' and a marcel, and park the kids with some trustworthy person. But that's not going far enough.

"From there on I differ with you, and how!

Needs Own Medicine

"My advice is for her to give him a dose of his own medicine. For her to step out, too, a little oftener than her husband does . . . and to stay considerably later.

"And that isn't all. I would advise her to also cut out the good housekeeping. Quit cooking him bang-up meals. Quit wearing herself out worrying about what he likes, and trying to please him. That's what's wrong . . . that's what's worn her out . . . and caused all the trouble. He thinks she's just a sort of house servant.

"Well, let everything run to pot, so that he can see what difference there is when she loses interest in the home, as he quite plainly has done.

"And, instead of being pleasant and running to get what he may happen to want, let her snap him up and tell him to go—well any old place.

"I could continue in this strain indefinitely, but I don't think it is necessary. Anyone with half an eye can get the drift. More spunk and less spinelessness. That's what I mean. She's just an old shoe to him now. He needs a jolt.

"And can't you just imagine the awful surprise of the gentleman who suddenly finds the sweet, neat, supine little Pollyanna gone Hell-Cat? I can.

"And believe you me! The Hell-Cat racket is a good one. Nobody knows better than

"LUCY."

That's her story, and she's gonna stick to it! But, what do you think, Mrs. McSweeney? Mr. Cunningham?

Questionable Program

Should a lady turn hell-cat when a hubby gets bored?

And if he "steps out" on her, should she give him tit for tat, and step out, too?

There's no doubt that such a program would buy her plenty of revenge, if that's what she's out to collect. . . .

But, would it buy her anything else?

If she follows it, will it bring Papa back into the fold, give her back his love and his interest? Or will it drive him away and wreck her marriage?

And even if it would bring him back . . .

Or pay him back . . .

How about the lady's own sinned wings? Will she enjoy living with them?

Come on. Let's have your say-so.

Would Lucy's program be a win-out or a wash-out?

It Is Important to Learn to Think for Yourself, Fay King Advises

By FAY KING

At times the wise do foolish things. At times the foolish act wisely.

Many persons regret having acted without thought upon the suggestion of one they believed wise in all things because he was wise in a few. Others regret because they disregarded the wisdom of one whom they believed foolish in all ways because he was foolish in many.

It is important to learn to think for yourself and not to be blindly influenced by the reputed judgment of another.

It pays to always weigh well in the scales of your own common sense the real worth of any suggestion coming from a wise man or a foolish one.

No one is infallibly wise—or foolish.

Think for yourself and then act accordingly.

Love's Reawakening

Tense Nerves Relax as Conspirators Arrive at Hotel

Dicky saved me the trouble of answering Noel's terror-stricken exclamation.

"Your father isn't within 20 miles of here, we hope," he said. "He couldn't be at the rate this bird has flown over the roads. You two have been sound asleep, but me, I've been scared speechless. The only thing I have breath for is 'Old Hundred.' You'd better join me."

I knew that he was talking to reassure Noel, and knew that Mr. Underwood's retort was also framed to divert the young chap's mind.

"Breath, boy!" he exclaimed disgustedly. "Breath! You've got nothing else but. I could have run the car on it coming in if we'd have run out of gas. If you've been speechless for the last three hours, then I never want to see you when you're talking. Now turn on that gas well you call your voice and make speech with that taxi man we're approaching."

Dicky hunched one shoulder as he turned toward the side of the street his friend had indicated.

"I crave no truck with you whatsoever," he said loftily, and then he leaned out of the car as we passed the cruising taxi and called to the man, who lifted his hand in reply and ranged his car alongside ours, slowed down by Mr. Underwood.

"Follow us to the hotel garage," Dicky directed, giving its street number, and the man fell behind us and trailed us to the garage, where we hastily transferred ourselves and Noel's baggage to his car.

Harry directed the driver to the hotel when we were safely inside. "But don't draw up to the door unless I give you the signal," he continued. "Go down this street, and then north, so you approach it from the west. Then cruise past it unless I tell you to stop."

"O. K." the man said laconically, and then each of us watched anxiously for the appearance of Mr. Veritzen's car. But we were happily disappointed, and when the taxi was almost in front of the hotel, with the street clear for blocks, Mr. Underwood gave the word to swing in. He was on the sidewalk before the car had stopped and opening the door for us.

"We've done it!" he exulted in a tone too low for the driver to catch. "Rush 'em upstairs, Dicky-bird, and I'll tend to things down here. Get the keys to both apartments but go into mine. Lil's staying with Mary in yours, and I hope they're both asleep."

But his hope was in vain as far as Lillian was concerned, for when Dicky was cautiously inserting the key into the door of the Underwood suite the door of our apartment, diagonally opposite, opened slightly and Lillian's face peered out. When she saw us she came swiftly through the door and caught me in a tight embrace.

"Everything all right?" she said. "Harry?"

"Downstairs distributing largess in order to see that all mouths are properly closed before coming of large manna distributor," Dicky told her. "He'll be up in a minute or two."

"Then you succeeded?"

"If you mean did we bring home the bacon, otherwise Noel successfully? Yes. Harry'll give you the lowdown on our experiences. Just now his orders are to get inside and lie low."

"Of course." She drew back from the door, but Noel took an eager step forward.

"Mary!"

"Mary's in her own room, I suppose," he said. "Asleep!"

"Yes, I just succeeded a few minutes ago in sending her off. She was awake almost all night."

"Then I'll go in and mount guard in the living room while you take Noel in your apartment and talk his arm off. Madge, in which cage are you going to light?"

"In our own eventually," I said, smiling. "Just now I must go with Lillian and Noel."

"I thought so," he grumbled, but he grinned as he phrased the words, and then we were inside the Underwood door and Noel was facing Lillian tensely.

"You say Mary was awake nearly all night," he said. "Is—she—sick?"

Lillian went up to him and took him by the coat lapels.

"Snap out of this, Noel," she said crisply. "No, she isn't sick, unless you call worry a sickness. She's been doing enough of that tonight. I don't mind telling you I've had my share since Katherine called me, saying you had been there and started back again. I'm not much of a mathematician, but I didn't need to be a professor in calculus to figure the rate of speed he must have kept up to get there at that hour. And when she said Noel's father was down there and suspicious I knew you'd be coming back at the same high speed. But I did a beautiful piece of falsifying to Mary and didn't let her know how worried I was. So at last the poor child fell asleep from sheer fatigue. She wanted me to promise to waken her when you reached here, but I'm going to ask you to forbid me to do it."

"Of course," Noel said promptly. "You mustn't waken her. I'm glad she's asleep." But he could not keep his disappointment from his voice, and I almost hoped that Mary would waken by the time I had finished my promised interview with Noel.

Horoscopes

Sunday, January 4

Sunday's horoscope is a most interesting one, with many of the planetary configurations denoting lively and progressive conditions in many directions. Mystical, spiritual and ecclesiastical matters are stressed, with prosperity and advancement promised. But there are important upheavals and changes imminent, accompanied by temporary setbacks or postponements. Be careful with papers and law.

Those whose birthday it is are at the crossroads of a most important time of life, with large matters at stake. Change, radical decisions, ambition and advancement loom on the immediate horizon, accompanied by stern oppositions and probable disappointments as well as personal annoyances. But it is a year of large opportunity and possibilities for achievement and prestige.

A child born on this day should have a splendid assortment of talents and faculties fitting it for a prominent place in life.

Monday, January 5

Monday's astrological forecast is quite a contradictory one, with good promise of favorable circumstances and opportunities, but these must be improved by wise judgment, clever methods and patient application and resistance to stubborn obstacle and frustration. However, personal adaptability and popularity may assist over these obstructions and private pleasures and social activity offset the passing adversities.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of some opposition and conflicting conditions, with progress and prosperous issues dependent upon determination to overcome obstacles with fortitude and earnest effort, these assisted by cleverness and good judgment. Personal affiliations and popularity may prove compensatory, as social, domestic and romantic affairs will be lively and happy.

A child born on this day should be endowed with many social and humane qualities and graces, which should assist it to overcome obstacles and difficulties.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Olive Question

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Will you tell me if a lady, when entering an elevator, should acknowledge the respect shown her by a gentleman who removes his hat when she enters?

2. Should pickles and olives, when served with sandwiches or salads, be eaten with the fingers? ANXIOUS.

This question interests me very much, for it shows in you a particularly gracious attitude toward manners. But, as a matter of fact, we don't make special acknowledgment of this evidence of good manners on the part of a gentleman, for we would, in this case, take for granted his evidence of respect.

2. Olives are always eaten in the fingers—nibbled with the pit held in the fingers, not sucked in the mouth. If we are eating the sandwich with a fork or with a knife and fork, we eat the pickle with the fork. If we are eating the sandwich in our fingers, we eat the pickle in our fingers also.

Never 'Drape Yourself'

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am coming to you for some helpful advice, which I assure you I shall appreciate very much.

A says that when a girl and man are walking together on the street the man should hold the girl's arm. B says that the girl should hold the man's arm. Will you please state which is correct, and why?

JENNIE.

Neither is correct. That is, unless the girl needs assistance. When a girl and man are walking together on the street they should walk independently, as a lady and gentleman should walk. There is no reason why they should "drape" on each other.

If, however, the girl needs assistance in crossing a crowded street or in crossing an icy pavement the man offers his arm. One of the most impolite things that a man can do is to take a woman's arm.

Hints on Hinting

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I had an argument with my girl friend and here is what it is all about: I told a man that I wanted to go to a certain show on Sunday, but I never have a chance to go because I have to go to church. He then invited me to go with him to the show on Saturday. I refused. My girl friend said I was hinting for him to take me, but that wasn't in my mind. Can you please help me out? Did that look like hinting or not? Was I right in refusing? CHICKIE.

I certainly agree with your girl friend, except that "hinting" seems to me a too mild word. And why, after you had suggested that he invite you, did you refuse? I don't follow your reason for doing this. Did I miss the point?

The Use of Titles

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper to mention in the wedding invitation the title of the groom—for instance, Dr.?

A BRIDE-TO-BE.

Yes, a title such as "Dr." is engraved on the invitation, but, when possible, the title is spelled in full. DOCTOR.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Women who argue and quarrel and fly into emotional fits are manufacturing poisons in their insides and creating waste products that are picked up by the blood streams. Anger, jealousy or any strong emotion has a direct effect upon the physical forces and upsets the system generally. Control of temper is one of the laws of beauty. Unpleasant emotions stamp the human phiz with ugly lines—the kind that won't rub out.

Beauty superstitions that are nothing but bunkum: that if you have a few facial treatments you must keep on having them or you will get terrible wrinkles, that electricity used for the removal of superfluous hair makes more hairs grow, that applying Epsom salt to fat legs will reduce them, that rubbing a stye with a gold wedding ring will make it evaporate, that when the ends of the hair are cut, the hair bleeds.

Soap is a first-class cosmetic and antiseptic. Unless a skin disease is present, like eczema, the complexion will accept a pure blend soap gratefully. It dries up pustules, and that is why it should be used freely if the complexion is unsightly with pimples and blackheads. The suds should be rinsed away with tepid water, and then with cold, after which the skin surface should be frictioned briskly with a soft towel and cold cream applied.

Heavy water drinkers usually have good complexions. The soft tissues of the face are partly water; they must have it to perform their work properly. They need it just as they need oil. If they become debilitated and weakened, they shrivel. When they shrivel the beauty jig is up, because fine lines creep into the texture and fine lines grow into gullies. Every girl should be a water-baby. Then when she is an old lady she will still look fresh and rosy.

Emaciated girls, like the heavyweights, don't fire up much enthusiasm for exercise. There is a reason. When the body is under-nourished there is no energy-building processes going on. Body heat is diminished. Spirits are sluggish. Light calesthetics and deep breathing are necessary to the featherweight; they stir up appetite and the lean one can look a lamb chop in the face with shuddering. Every meal should be topped off with a glass of milk and cream, half and half. Nothing like milk to put fat on the ribs. Except cod liver oil.

Ears are being made up. They are not only rouged on the lobes but along the side beams or outer edges. Won't do to have shining ears when the complexion and neck have been given a dull finish by applications of powder. Whether ears should be out or covered depends upon their size, shape and coloring.

The complexion of the true blonde, she of the blue eyes and flaxen hair, has almost a luminous, semi-transparent appearance. The reason that this type flaunts rose-pink cheeks is that the thinness of the skin permits the capillaries to display their lovely coloring. Being delicate and fragile of structure, the blonde complexion wrinkles earlier than the healthier, heavier skin of the brunette. However, the blonde seldom suffers from enlarged pores or blackheads. That's something.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Teeth Decay Comes From Within

In our childhood we were told, and perhaps for a time believed that:

"Crusts will make you hair curl.

Crusts will make you strong.

Crusts will cure the stomachache.

DR. COPELAND

Some of the present-day claims of dietitians may seem just as extravagant and far-fetched, but fortunately for us, they have a more scientific basis than the conclusions of this old nursery rhyme. For example, every day more and more evidence is being accumulated to prove that good teeth depend almost wholly on proper diet.

For many years dentists and doctors, health and school officials, have laid great emphasis on the proper cleansing of the teeth. We have been taught how and when to brush the teeth and massage the gums, what kind of a brush to use, what paste or powder to put on it, why dental floss is necessary, what mouth-wash to employ. And we have been trained to make semi-annual trips to the dentist to have him repair the damage that has taken place.

Now we are being taught that unless the diet is correct all the physical care that can be given the teeth will not preserve them. But, on the other hand, if the diet is correct the dentist's examination will more often than not show that all is well.

Damage to the teeth comes primarily from within. The teeth fail to form properly or their substance breaks down because of a lack of the proper food elements to build them up and make them strong and resistant.

Tests have recently been conducted at the University of Michigan to discover the effect on the teeth of eating sugar. Groups of children were carefully watched during a certain period. All of them were given an antiseptic mouth wash twice daily. Some were allowed their usual diet while the others were put on one from which sugar was practically eliminated.

At the end of the period the teeth were examined. Two-thirds of those who had eaten sugar had developed cavities. In those who had not had sugar there was no evidence of decay.

Doubtless it was not the sugar itself a valuable food when properly used, that caused the decay. More likely it is because sweet food takes away the appetite for the foods necessary for tooth development.

Knowing these things you will see why it is wise to eat sweets, especially in a concentrated form like candy only at the end of a meal. When that is done, there is more likely to be a properly balanced diet, the essentials will be taken. Then the teeth will not suffer from a lack of the food elements they need.

What are these elements that take part in building the teeth? The most important ones are lime, phosphorus and the substance known as vitamin D.

To secure these elements the diet should contain fresh fruits and vegetables, but, more important than anything else, it should contain an adequate amount of milk.

A quart of milk a day by itself would supply all the vitamin D needed by an adult. For babies and children it is the chief source of this important element, and should never be omitted from the diet.

Answers ot Health Queries

R. M. T. Q.—I have been advised to take salt baths for a rheumatic condition—using about two pounds of the coarse salt to a bath. Do you advise this treatment?

A.—Hot baths are often very beneficial—but such treatment should be advised by the doctor who is familiar with your particular case. Try to find the underlying cause of the condition first of all.

* * *

E. J. W. Q.—What do you advise me to do for fallen arches?

2.—Can I correct constipation?

2.—You should eat simple well-cooked food. Avoid foods unduly rich in fats and starches. For other information send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

* * *

MISS D. R. I. Q.—What causes little white blotches on the nails, and what can be done to remedy the disturbance?

A.—These spots may be due to injury due to improper handling of manicuring instruments. They will probably grow out with the nail.

* * *

C. W. S. Q.—Is there a cure for atrophic rhinitis? Treatment has only brought about partial relief. The mucus in the nose seems to harden, causing the nostrils to feel dry and scaly.

A.—This condition must have special attention. See a specialist or go to one of the hospital clinics for proper treatment.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

Another woman says that wives should overlook a husband's error when he "steps out" just once and is sorry. She also believed as I do that once you forgive you should never bring up the subject again no matter what happens.

The lady from Indiana writes: "I left my husband to go on a visit to his people. I was gone eight weeks. At the end of that time when he came for me, I sensed that something had happened. He was kinder than ever to me, but I knew that he wanted to tell me something. We had never kept anything from each other and I knew that he was suffering. Finally out it came. He had taken a lady out for the evening (she didn't know he was married). They had been to a theater and had dinner together. His excuse was that he wanted a thrill and thought he would get it that way, but was so miserable that he didn't ever want to try any tricks again.

"I was most kind to him, for after all, we are all pretty much alike. That incident has, if anything, brought us closer together. In the past four years following the incident, we have had much illness and sorrow, but never has there been cross words between us through all our trials.

"You are right. A husband who has always loved and respected his wife and gets off the track once, needs an understanding wife or he is better off without any wife at all.

"A Constant Reader."

"Perhaps the lady whose husband 'stepped out' feared to face the gossips of her city and that was the reason she wouldn't forgive him. Well, here is what I did. I wasn't home long before the story came to me in many wild and different variations. What did I do? Just smiled at them like they were so many poor fish and said: 'Why she is a cousin from Rochester.' And did they pull themselves back into their rusty shells? I'll say they did! I don't think I was wrong in lying about it, do you? At any rate he never gets talked about any more, and the better ones of the lot have apologized for ever thinking such a thing of him, for he is popular in church and lodge work and is respected by everyone.

"I am going to train my boys to get a lot of happiness out of life. They will not be so strictly held in as their father was when he was a boy. I blame that episode on his never being able to cut loose when a boy."

I hope the wives who stampeded me when I said erring husbands should be forgiven will read this and think it over.

Household Hints

Hard-boiling water is no hotter than gently boiling water. When vegetables and soups begin to boil, save gas and turn the burner down until just sufficient to keep the water bubbling, and the food will cook just as quickly and better than if boiling hard.

If you are given a pair of elaborately decorated candles and are quite certain they will soil easily, give them a coat of clear shellac before ever using them. Dust will not adhere to them readily and they will stand quite a deal of wiping with a clean damp cloth when they do get soiled.

Many women who never laid claims to being artists have recently discovered latent talents and have become very handy with a paint brush. The quick drying paints have greatly aided the home decorator, and it is quite amazing to see what a bit of bright, fresh paint will do to enhance the charm of a room. For instance a tier of open-bookshelves that has been built, perhaps, in a rather dark, out-of-the-day corner of a room, will take on a new personality if the inside surfaces are painted a cheerful lacquer red. If this seems too obvious a color note, merely line the edges of the shelf with the bright color. A couple of Chinese lacquer boxes scattered about the room, perhaps for cigarets or salted nuts will help to make the color note more important.

Never use ammonia or washing soda on an aluminum vessel. Vigorous scrubbing with a metal sponge should also be avoided. Aluminum wears out under such drastic treatment and will respond better to a softer polish and very fine steel wool.

When buying extra coat hangers remember that the ones with the narrow piece of wood take up much less room than the thick ones with the bar below. If your closet is a small one, this small item means a great deal as a space saver, and the nice part of it is that the slim ones cost just half as much as the heavy variety.

Words of the Wise

Impossible is a word I never say.—D'Harleville.

Murmur at nothing. If our ills are reparable, it is ungrateful; if remediless, it is vain.—Colton.

The most plain, short and lawful way to any good end is more eligible than one directly contrary if some or all of those qualities.—Swift.

It is proper that alms should come of a little purse, as well as out of a great sack; but surely where there is plenty, charity is a duty, not a courtesy.—Fellthan.

A crowd is not company, and faces are but a gallery of pictures where there is no love.—Bacon.

There are some men formed with feelings so blunt that they can hardly be said to be awake during the whole course of their lives.—Burke.

Benevolence is a duty. He who frequently practices it, and sees his benevolent intentions realized, at length comes really to love him to whom he has done good.—Kant.

From J. H. B. Philadelphia comes a protest against the more [illegible] programs offering singers [illegible] than those [illegible] instrumentalists. As proof of his contention he declares [illegible] increasing interest in symphony concerts and [illegible] decrease in attendance at song recitals.

It is our belief that attendance, increased and decreased respectively at instrumental and song recitals are still chiefly dependent upon the character of the concerts.

In present-day America instrumentalists are not only far more numerous than [illegible] singers—they are also far more [illegible] ment. For one [illegible] Charlie Thomas or Roland Hayes we have a half dozen [illegible] and several great [illegible]

WE NOW PRESENT
By DARRELL MARTIN, Radio Editor

Little Jack Little is the latest addition to radio's broadcasting [illegible] has passed the [illegible] through WEAF, WCAE and WJAS.

Jack is one of the finest radio personalities we know. He's about so high and looks altogether out of place with anything but a midget piano.

Who remembers Harry Snodgrass, "King of the Yodlers" who rose to radio fame about the same time? WOS at Jefferson City, Mo. sponsored his broadcasts from the state prison.

Mary Garden says the leading [illegible] Maurice Gaskin and Charles Hackett. The latter, Americans, is a favorite of the opera singers. He will [illegible] KDKA at 10 o'clock.

Hamilton Forrest, composer of the opera [illegible] was an office boy in the Chicago office of Samuel Insull, wealthy Midwest [illegible]

WCAE has a form of [illegible] hard to beat. In the High Road to Adventure, Hoyt Koontz and Sing and Bug Baer, all 15-minute programs running from 7:45 to 8:30.

Jessica Dragonette's description of Goldilocks and the Three Bears was the best bit of storytelling we've heard on the ether. Having the drums chase Goldilocks was her own invention and a worthy [illegible]

Have you heard anything so superb as her singing of "Indian Love Call" and the poetical fancy of "Madrigal of May?"

Sponsors of Jessica's program apparently have taken heed to an avalanche of letters that followed their supercilious idea of imposing popular songs on radio's most delicate voice.

QUESTION A DAY

We have an assignment. Mr. Ben Grimm suggests that Duke Ellington's Band is made up of Negroes. If he's correct I win a 10-pound box of candy. Will you please give him the correct? Ruth D.

Answer—By court order you capture the prize. The whole band is composed of Negroes. Duke and a few of his boys hail from Washington, D. C., while the others joined him in New York.

"BY THE WAY—"

With Mussolini now converted to radio the broadcasters have turned their attention to ex-Kaiser Wilhelm, the Pope, Charles Chaplin and Greta Garbo. KQV boys and girls have a bowling league down there every Monday night.

Their only "chops" come in a restaurant after the games.

Edgar Guest, poet who comes to us Sunday night with the Detroit Symphony via WJAS, resembles Chauncey Parsons, and another pair who look alike are Laurence Tibbett and Allen Thrasher, the KDKA announcer.

Bonus Meeker comes to KDKA and the William Penn to screen Don Bestor on January 9. Tom Gerun who was to come here, takes Paul Whiteman's place in Chicago.

Franco Ossino writes most of the poems heard on his Waste Basket through WJAS every Sunday night.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

One of our favorite waitresses is a downtown restaurant has contracted a short wave radio habit and gets thrills aplenty listening to the police broadcasts in Chicago and Detroit. She knows very little of what goes on in the standard waves but always has the dope on Chicago's latest hold-up.

Connie Tells Her Sister of Jim's Selfishness

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The day before her marriage to Jim Tracy, wealthy Connie Calvert learns through Duke Garson, underworld character, of the existence of a half-sister, Kitty, by her father's secret first marriage. Kitty, a produce of the slums, demands $100,000 for her silence. Connie, glad to have found her sister, offers to take her home. Kitty refuses. Connie is favorably impressed by Duke's magnetism. When Jim objects to her interest in Kitty, Connie breaks her engagement. She realizes Jim is mainly interested in her money and that she does not love him. Connie tells her mother about Kitty. Connie sees Kitty and learns of her laborious daily struggle for existence. Kitty goes home with Connie and is welcomed by Mrs. Calvert. When Jim visits he takes an interest in Kitty. Connie, believing Jim a philanderer, is concerned for Kitty. Kitty admits that she likes Jim, but is afraid that he does not like her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIV.

The distress of Kitty was so shockingly obvious that Connie felt all of her own feelings melting in her own breast, actually, she could share the nervous pain that belonged to Kitty. Instantly, she put an arm around the troubled girl's shoulders.

"Don't cry, dear . . . Jim's not worth it . . . "

Kitty looked at her face. Her strained and haggard. Yet there was fire in her eyes.

"He may not be worth it to you, but he is to me. Hey can you know what I'm feeling?"

"You have got to get hold of yourself," Connie urged her seriously, speaking with effort through the turmoil of emotion. "You must quiet yourself and try to find out what has happened."

"I guess I have to take your advice," Kitty asserted honestly.

Speak of His Traits

The tide of her emotion began to drain away, leaving her bewildered and somehow stranded. Her helplessness now appalled Connie. To see a girl—a woman—so stripped of all concealing pretenses was pitiful.

"I can't understand how it came about so suddenly," she told Kitty. "I should have thought, as wise as you are, that you'd be the last person on earth such a thing would happen to."

"I can't understand it myself," Kitty told her. "It was anybody else to say they were goofy. I had no more to do with it myself than if I had caught influenza."

"Influenza isn't fatal always, and sometimes it is cured very quickly," Connie pointed out. "It's a thing like this won't stay stationary. Something is bound to happen, and you'll have to make a decision."

"I suppose it will really be up to Jim," Kitty declared.

"Without your consent no matter what he feels, he will be helpless." In the end, you will have the final say. You have to decide what you're going to do."

"I suppose I'll do whatever he wants. If he wants me I'll have him, I suppose. But it's funny, me being knocked for a loop, like this. You sure don't blame me, Connie?"

"Of course not, but if you mean am I clairvoyant, I'm not in the slightest."

"But you're against it? You think I am making a fool out of myself."

"I don't think you'll find a great deal of happiness with Jim in the future if I found certain traits in him that made me decide not to marry him. I think you're certain, sooner or later, to come in contact with those same objections."

Connie, despite the sensation she was treading dangerous ground, was swept on by her own honest intention to risk further the perilous business of trying to give Kitty an idea of what Jim Tracy was like.

Cites His Selfishness

"You won't find much sincerity in Jim. There will be a lot of selfishness and I'm afraid, more interest in your money than in your love."

"You say that!"

Kitty's low cry seemed suppressed, deadened as though she had struggled to hold back the words that had leaped out of her distress to her lips. It was an accusation resting inevitable. Connie realized with swift insight that she herself had provoked this beginning of ill will.

"Don't you believe me? don't you trust me?"

"Oh, I suppose so. I didn't mean to say that, but you see I know the truth about you and Jim. He told me. It's all right for both of you that you pretend in public that you care him the slip, but you know as well as he that he was tickled to death to get out of it himself. Even you got to admit he seems happier now than when you two were engaged."

Connie smiled thinly. So that was the line he had trained Kitty! She had not, really, thought him such a cad. Plainly, he thought himself more clever than he really was in reaching forward for Kitty's money to forget certain events. Not for a moment did Connie believe that he was seriously attracted to the girl herself—true, Kitty had good looks and a certain vital, macabre charm, but Jim Tracy was not swayed by such things. To handle the situation and steer Kitty out of her predicament would require a definite shrewdness.

Kitty Helpless

The mental balance the poise the intelligent experience with life did not exist in Kitty's being; her hardness was all on the outside, up against the complicated mechanism of a more subtle development of society. Kitty was almost childish in her helplessness and, like a child, she was difficult to reach, a certain familiar kind of language of thought was required to reach her. Judy O'Grady and the colonel's lady might well be sisters under the skin, but they spoke with different accents.

Connie's mind reverted to Duke Garson. If Garson possessed the facts that Connie had, he would more nearly have the means of conveying them understandingly to Kitty.

"Oh, gee! I'm sorry I spoke so rough to you, Connie," said Kitty. "I guess you have your troubles the same as I do. Ain't it hell—us two sisters both being in love with the same man."

"One-half of what you say is true, at least," Connie smiled. "You can be sure of one thing—I won't compete with you for him, and I wouldn't get myself all excited about it if I were you. You have all eternity before you to work things out, so there's no hurry."

Downstairs, after Kitty had gone to bed, Connie went into a side room and put through a telephone call to New York. The number she called was Joe's Place on Tenth avenue and the person she sought was Duke Garson.

DAILY TRUE STORY For Better or Worse

Peggo Woods—who was Margaret only on her birth and marriage certificates—was mopping the kitchen floor when the telephone rang. It was Ruth, her dearest friend.

"Peggo, are you going to the city with me to get that fur coat? You know—?" Peggo did know. Ruth had talked about a fur coat all season, planning to wait for the January sales. Although she had a great deal of money, she was avid in the matter of bargains.

Thinking only of the pleasant drive she would have with her friend, of whom she was very fond, Peggo replied enthusiastically, "Of course I am! Say when!"

Ruth said 9 o'clock the next morning.

At breakfast, the following morning, Peggo hesitantly asked Beck if he could give her some money to spend. Beck was generous at heart, and like all husbands wanted more than anything to seem a success to his wife. He slowly produced a single dollar bill, feeling very small.

"Will that be enough?"

Her heart sank, although she should have known that he would not have any money left this time of the month. Beck said hastily, "I'm sorry, Honey maybe I can sell out this year and get into something else and then you can have a fur coat, too."

Peggo managed a smile. After all it was a nice day, even for January—and it would be a holiday from dishwashing, and the children. It was nice of her mother to look after them for the day.

"Of course that will be enough. I have only my luncheon to buy."

Outside Ruth honked vigorously.

"Bye Lover."

Realizes Position

"By Honey, have a good time."

Arriving in the city, Ruth went at once to a suave and opulent shop which had advertised a gigantic sale. Here surrounded by long mirrors Peggo began to wish fervently that she had not come. For she was all wrong. Her hat was wrong, her coat was wrong—but most of all her dress was wrong. It was much too short.

Peggo was resentful and bitter. As a girl she had been copied and admired and now at 38, she suddenly awoke to the fact that she was slipping—had slipped.

A tall, beautifully groomed woman came towards her. Her black dress appeared to be molded to her figure, and fell in silken folds around her feet. Her coiffure was flawless, her skin perfect. She might have been 25—only Peggo had a feeling that she was older.

"Can I interest you in our new cosmetics? We are putting in a new line—the Lady Betty."

Peggo said, "No thank you," rather shortly.

"There is no obligation to buy," the demonstrator went on smoothly. "If you would only let me show you what these preparations can do for your skin." She went on explaining—skin freshener, tissue cream, night cream, muscle oil. And finally surrendering, Peggo found herself in a deep wicker chair with an immaculate white apron-like affair about her neck, while the suave demonstrator did things to her face. Peggo did not like the growing circle of interested women who stood and watched, but she thought, oh well, no one knows me anyway! After the final dusting of swansdown powder and the final breath of just the right shade of rouge, she was handed the mirror, and invited to look.

"Oh," she gasped involuntarily. She had lost 10 years. And then she felt cheated. The preparations including everything, cost $16.50. She could not explain to Beck the necessity of $16.50 worth of cosmetics at this time, hard up as he was.

Remains Silent

So she said simply, "Thank you. I will send you an order in the near future." And yielded the wicker chair to the next impatient customer. Miss Beck, as the other women called her, turned to Peggo hesitatingly. "Do you mind my saying that you have lovely hair? Such an unusual shade of brown. Try parting it in the middle and let it fall in soft waves on each side of your face."

During luncheon she was rather silent, but happily Ruth was too engrossed in her own affairs to notice. On the way home, by a determined effort, Peggo kept up her end of the conversation, but she was glad to have her own front door close behind her, and to find herself alone.

She began to cry. All the years of worry and drudgery of lost youth, of bright and happy dreams unrealized were caught in that flood of tears. And presently when she had quite ruined the lovely effect of her facial, she dried her eyes and began to consider. There must be some way to make money. It would of course, have to be something she could do at home.

As if in answer, her favorite magazine offered a prize of $2,000 for the best short story by a new author, of 2,000 words. She considered. She had never written anything, but she could at least try.

She lay awake half the night considering plots. It seemed to her there was a trend of stories about young love, so she finally fell asleep with an idea.

The next month, every spare moment she worked on the story. Finally it was ready. Beautifully typed by the one-finger method, correctly punctuated, and mailed in a flat folder, it was pleasing to the eye at least. About the story, she was dubious. It was such a simple one—with no tricky arrangement of words; no attempt at cleverness.

Perhaps that was the reason it won the prize. Perhaps her own lost youth and suppressed longings breathed a subtle something into the little story.

Congratulations and a check for $2,000 were enclosed. Just as easy as that! Peggy took one look at it and began to sing at the top of her voice.

"Fur coat! Fur coat! Fur coat!"

Her first impise was to run to the telephone to tell Beck. And then she decided to wait until he got home and have a real celebration. She made his favorite butterscotch pie and veal birds with a singing heart, and as she worked she spent the money. Fur coat all those lovely things for her face, a new dress and hat, and accessories, and a little car. Wouldn't it be wonderful to look like something again, to feel pretty and well groomed, to gaily ask someone to ride with her, instead of always having to "accept" a ride herself!

And then Beck came home with a long face. The veal birds and pie made no impression. So waiting with her surprise, Peggy asked him, "What in the world is the matter?"

"The matter is that I could make the business go if I had a little capital. There was a salesman in this morning with a line of hardware to sell at low prices to compete with this cut rate store near me. If I could put that line in, we'd be saved."

"But you spoke of selling out," said Peggy with a sinking heart.

Aids Husband

"No one wants to buy a store that's losing money," Beck pointed out shortly. "I would simply have to give it away. I doubt if I could get enough to cover my loans at the bank."

"How much would it take?" asked Peggo slowly.

"Two thousand would do it nicely and it might as well be two million," said Beck bitterly.

"It would have to be the exact amount," thought Peggo to herself. Then she threw up her head. "For better or worse," she had declared. And though in her heart she did not know now whether Beck was a good business man or not, she could not let him down. She reached into her pocket, drew out a neatly folded slip and tossed it to him.

"Will that do it?" she asked quietly.

"Two thousand," gasped Beck. "Where did you get it?"

Peggo explained, leaving out the fur coat. Of course Beck said wistfully that he did not want to use her money. And, of course, Peggo insisted, keeping up an air of bright gladness until he was gone, jubilantly hurrying off to hunt up the salesman.

"Well, that's that!" She went into the bedroom aimlessly took down her hair, and started to part it in the middle. She looked up and smiled to herself, a crooked little smile.

"Oh—you poor sap!" she said.

POLICE AFTER DEAD BANDITS

WEREN'T THEY SILLY!

We stir, we wake, and then we sit
Upon the bed awhile
And meditate upon our fate
Our thoughts all mixed with bile.
We dress, we shave, and then we rush
To gulp our breakfast down;
To hesitate would make us late,
We hurry into town.
We work, we shirk, and then we eat
And then we work some more;
We ramble through, we fret and stew
And do things we abhor.
At night we eat another meal
And then we get to bed,
Tomorrow will be yet and still
The same 'til we are dead.
In ages past I understand,
Life was not so complete—
Hoi polloi alive with joy,
Went dancing in the street.

As Railroads Make More Money, Public Must Benefit in Service and Rates

The following editorial is printed this morning on the editorial page of the New York American, dated January 13, 1930. It was the first of a series of six editorials dealing with the proposed consolidation of several railroads. It is reprinted because of its timeliness.

The most important act of the federal government in a long time is the report of the Interstate Commerce Commission recommending certain railroad consolidations.

We have too many separate railroads in the country, with expensive and unnecessary duplication of high officials, terminals and services. A weak line that serves its community badly can be made strong by adoption into the family of a powerful and successful system.

Nobody who has the interest of the country at heart can oppose wise railroad mergers. We do not want to hang on to a more expensive way of producing transportation service any more than we want to hang on to a more expensive way of producing motor cars or houses.

What we DO want from Congress and the Interstate Commerce Commission, charged with regulating the railroads, is to be assured that the public shall get its full share of the advantages and economies of these new business combinations.

This means that as the railroads make more money the public must get better service at lower rates. Law and regulation should be devoted to making these public benefits automatic.

If Congress will act in this direction the public will be served; it will not be served by foolish and unprofitable opposition to mergers, which are inevitable since they promise economy and progress.

This, incidentally, is simply a restatement of the long established policy of the Hearst papers with respect to business combinations and consolidations.

The merger principle in railroad organization must be carried through without hesitation or delay.

Whether the Interstae Commerce Commission was wise in the specific twenty one consolidation groups it recommends is another matter.

LIFE IN THE BOWELS OF THE EARTH

Leaping far ahead in time, millions of years perhaps, he tells us what he thinks life will be for us human beings when the world grows old and cold.

Men will live under ground. The "door" of the deeply buried houses will be a hole in the ground, as shown in the picture at the top. And the actual residences will be far below the earth's surface, down where the earth's central fires supply warmth.

The French scientist's conception of your future residence is much like the Armenian dwellings that Xenophon visited and slept in on his memorable "Anabasis." You have read the Anabasis, of course, that marvelous bringing back of a shattered army to the shore of the beautiful Greek sea.

You will read Prof. Thevenin's article in the American Weekly, distributed with tomorrow's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, a compendium of important facts concerning science and human nature.

Forever restless, the human race seeks new sensations. The reproductions of women's photographs in this article

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Purely personal piffle: The odor of bananas is remindful of hospitals. Talking to a lady wearing a riding habit gives me a feeling of complete inferiority. I always enter a Pullman diner expecting somebody to recognize me. But nobody ever has. I have never been an active pallbearer.

My favorite feminine name is Hope. A favorite masculine name is Michael. I am unable to use a pen without smudging my fingers. I'm far from a goody-goody but have a curious collection of old-fashioned scruples instilled by a grandmother. And observed from purely sentimental reasons.

Mary Boland's my favorite comedienne. Ziegfeld and I have at least one telephone quarrel a year. After the last one he sent me a bottle of perfume. One of my intimates is H. T. Webster, whom I have seen but once in five years. But we exchange insulting letters regularly. He addresses me as Oscar. I call him Harold.

I have never found a satisfactory shoe buttoner. Maybelle Manning has the most distinctive handwriting of any lady I know. The most indecipherable is that of Gilbert White, the portrait painter.

I have a collection of safety razors. I was one of the first two reporters to interview the Wright brothers.

And I spoke of them as "impractical dreamers." The first city I ever visited was St. Joseph, Missouri. I have been in every city of importance in America save Portland, Maine. The most expensive hotel I ever stopped at was The Whitehall in Palm Beach, Florida. My caricature is not on display at Sardi's.

The greatest reaction from anything I have written was about a Mexican sheepherder in the Cosmopolitan. The article I thought best was printed in a Sunday newspaper and caused no comment whatever. I like to sleep in old houses with wind-creaking shutters.

The only tune I don't whistle off-key is "In the Good Old Summertime." In strange hotels I eavesdrop on people quarreling in an adjoining room. And I have listened in on some dandies. The best of all was in the Biltmore in Los Angeles. I despise gambling and am a poor loser.

* * *

I received 3,187 cards last Christmas. The most polished gentleman I ever met was an international crook, now spending 20 years in British gaol. Nothing makes me laugh on the screen like Buster Keaton's "dead pan." I enjoy getting to a theater early to watch the seating of the audience. But I want to be first out when the curtain falls.

* * *

When I become extremely agitated the sides of my neck break out in a rash. And my voice squeaks. I am continually stepping off curbs unexpectedly and biting my tongue. I wouldn't ride up to the top of the Chrysler Building and look down for anything. Neither my wife nor I pout. We speak our minds and forget it.

* * *

I read Ed Howe's Monthly from cover to cover regularly. Hiccups always frighten me. The man who saved me from disaster in the market crash was the late Will Hogg. He predicted it three years before it happened, to the very month.

* * *

I have been introduced to Charles M. Schwab three times—at a Rotary luncheon in Indianapolis, on the promenade at Monte Carlo and in the lobby of the Ritz, New York. Still he doesn't know me, which gives you an idea of my devastating personality. I believe the most promising composer of the moment is Sidney Romberg. The show enjoyed most this winter is "Grand Hotel." The book: Arnold Bennett's "Imperial Palace."

* * *

A young lady who saw me passing through the lobby of the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco wrote: "You have about as much sex appeal as Lincoln's Gettysburg speech." The only people who have hoodwinked me are those I trusted. And I've always managed to even things. I do not believe New York theaters try to check the ticket speculating evil. Night clubs depress me. I chew five cakes of gum at a time if nobody is looking.

This hill might be

Whence comes new folks and strange events
To fill life to the brim.

Oh, round green hill,
I question day by day,
What will you send across to me,
To make life grim or gay?

That Trolley Crash

A Case In Which Judgment Is to Be Suspended Until the Facts Are Known—Brief Comment on Local News.

The trolley accident in Lawrenceville yesterday in which a street car left the tracks and crashed into a dwelling, is one of the cases in which it is important to withhold judgment until the facts are known. The accident occurred at 5:30 a. m. The occupants of the building were in bed, the only passenger in the one-man car was napping, and the motorman has been seriously injured. These things make it difficult to obtain the facts. No good purpose is served, under the circumstances, in hazarding opinions based on mere conjecture.

The accident calls for thorough investigation, and of course such an investigation is being made. If someone was to blame, let the responsibility be fixed and disclosed. If the inquiry reveals how such accidents may be prevented—and this is the thing most to be looked for in the investigation—it is to be hoped the proper preventive measures will be taken promptly. In the meanwhile, when we reflect on what would have happened if the mishap had occurred during a rush hour, we can be thankful it was not worse.

It is inspiring to note that the prize-winning New Year's resolutions in the Sun-Telegraph's contest nearly all embody in one form or another the principle of unselfish service which we know as the Golden Rule. As Jesus worded it in Matthew vii-12, "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so to them; for this is the law and the prophets." It is not to be overlooked that one of the rules of eligibility was that the resolutions be practicable, and that the judges were practical, successful men of affairs.

The upper photograph shows two beautiful twins, the photographed heads excellently arranged to emphasize their beautiful profiles. They are the Ruthven twins, much admired in London society.

The lady lying on her back, with flowers, and photographed strangely, as though in death, angels watching, is not dead in the least. On the contrary, she is the poetess, Miss Edith Sitwell.

Perhaps it pleased her to see how she would look lying dead. Poets have queer ideas. Perhaps she only wanted to illustrate the well-known saying that this life is a "checkerboard of nights and days." You will notice that she is lying on a checkerboard.

It is not possible, in limited space, to give you any adequate idea of the genius with which the American Weekly,
